Steubenville Mayor Unhurt In Bombing

Atty. Alexander Also Escapes Injury In Apartment Blasting

STEUBENVILLE — The homes of Steubenville Mayor Samuel S. McCormick and Atty. Hugo Alexander, Jefferson County Democratic party chairman, were damaged by bomb blasts early today but no one was injured.

Police, after sifting the debris, had no clues to the identity of the bombers.

Mayor McCormick and Atty. Alexander said they were not threatened recently and are at a loss to explain why their homes were picked as targets.

Mayor McCormick lives on the ground floor of the Alba Courts Apartment Building, 306 N. 3rd St. The bomb was planted in an areaway between his apartment and an unoccupied house. It blew out 11 windows on the north side of the Alba Courts, and 8 windows in a neighboring house.

The concussion ripped out the basement window frames, blew out the pilot light on a gas furnace and broke a basement door. The blast was so violent that it shattered a storm window at the home of Sheriff Phyllis Irene Eberts, who lives in an upstairs apartment across the street.

Mayor McCormick, who was sleeping when the blast occurred at 2:30 a. m., appeared unruffled. He said his chief concern was the safety of other residents in the building. Eleven of the 12 apartments were occupied.

A basement window ledge about six feet below the window of the mayor's bedroom took the brunt of the blast.

Atty. Alexander was watching a late movie on television in his basement den when a bomb exploded on his porch at 904 Woodlawn Ave., just a few minutes after the blast at Mayor McCormick's home.

The bomb at Atty. Alexander's home broke nine panes of glass, the front door, ripped iron railing from the porch and tore out a few bricks. Small shrubs and pine trees in the yard were damaged and debris was scattered over a wide area.

The concussion smashed a window at the home of Harry J. Bates next door.

Police theorize that dynamite was used, possibly a half-stick, as a full stick would have caused more extensive damage. Police also believe that the bombings were a scare attempt rather than an attempt to injure. No bomb fragments were uncovered.

20 Quiz Show Figures Face Arrest On Perjury

NEW YORK (AP)—About 20 contestants who appeared on two television quiz shows faced arrest today on second-degree perjury charges.

A Manhattan grand jury returned the indictments Friday, but since none of those charged had been arrested, their names were not disclosed.

YWCA Figure Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—Ethel Bird, 79, former national secretary for immigration and foreign communities of the Young Women's Christian Association, died Friday after a long illness. Miss Bird held the post for 23 years until her retirement in 1942.

Lines Up With Soviet

Red China In UN Backed By Cuba

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Cuba today threw its full support behind the seating of Red China in the United Nations and lined up solidly with the Soviet Union on other major issues including disarmament.

Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa, addressing the U.N. General Assembly, referred to the United States as an imperialist power which advocated a hands-off policy so it could put its own hands on China territory.

In announcing the Cuban government's support of seating the Peiping regime, Roa spoke scornfully of Cuba's long record of voting against such a move. He said this was just a case of a servant following the orders of its master.

He described the Communist Peiping government as one freely chosen by the people of China and having complete economic and political control over Chinese territory. Opponents of its admission to the U.N., he said, were the "enemies of mankind."

Premier Khrushchev, after threatening to uphold Soviet interests outside the United Nations by "relying on our own strength," was expected to address the U.N. General Assembly again today in another demand for disarmament without inspection.

The Assembly also neared the pivotal vote on Red China, a test of American strength and of the attitude of neutralist nations on this fiercely fought issue.

Six leaders were still to speak on whether the seating of Red China should be placed on the Assembly's agenda.

The vote comes afterward. It was delayed Friday when Nigeria became the 99th member of the General Assembly. A parade of delegates—36 asked for the right to speak—trooped to the rostrum to welcome the new member.

A new development in the attention being paid to new members was the report from diplomatic sources that President Eisenhower has invited their delegates to a luncheon in Washington late next week. The report said the President would send a plane for them.

Seventeen newly independent countries — Cyprus and 16 in Africa—have been admitted to the U.N. since the Assembly session opened Sept. 20.

Khrushchev gave the U.N., and the world, a lot to think about, answering U.N. correspondents' questions. He said:

1. Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain "assured me that a summit conference would take place."

2. As to maintaining the status quo on Berlin, he said that if a "summit conference is to be held shortly after the (presidential) elections in the United States, then I can say we shall keep our word."

3. He warned, however, "If you want me to give assurances that the status quo will be preserved without reaching an agreement to hold a summit conference, without reaching agreement on the

Khrushchev Changes Mind On U.N. Talk

NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev apparently changed his mind about making a speech on disarmament in the United Nations today.

The change of schedule was announced by State Department security men at 11:20 a.m. at the Soviet U.N. delegation headquarters. Until the announcement, Khrushchev had been scheduled to address the U.N. General Assembly in the afternoon.

Survey On Nixon-Kennedy

Second TV Debate Fails To Sway Many Of Voters

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spot check across the country indicates Friday night's television debate swayed only a few voters toward one presidential candidate or the other.

The check of 100 persons was made by Associated Press bureaus in 10 cities from Portland, Ore., to Portland, Maine.

The AP found that in the vast majority of cases, supporters of John F. Kennedy remained Kennedy men, supporters of Richard M. Nixon remained Nixon men, and the uncommitted voters remained on the fence.

Only 20 of the hundred reported they had been influenced in any way by the debate, and none of those changed from one candidate to the other.

By contrast, after the candidates' first joint appearance Sept. 26, a similar poll in other cities showed 35 of 100 persons saying they had been influenced, including two who reported they were switching from Nixon to Kennedy.

Of the score influenced by Friday night's debate, more leaned toward Kennedy than toward Nixon.

But the influence involved a change of intensity, not of allegiance. Those influenced by Kennedy had leaned toward him in the first place. The debate, however, strengthened their resolve.

The same situation held true for those influenced by Nixon. Nixon supporters before the debate, they became stronger Nixon supporters after it.

AP staffers made the check by telephone. In each area, they kept phoning at random until they reached 10 qualified voters who had seen the whole program. It took 232 calls to find 100 persons who met those qualifications.

The bureaus making the survey were Atlanta, Louisville, Philadelphia, Columbus, Ohio; Omaha, Phoenix, San Francisco, Portland, Ore.; Portland, Maine; and Richmond, Va.

Those interviewed came from small towns as well as the cities in which the AP bureaus are located.

Castro Using Fear Tactics To Hold Gains

Hint To Observers Government Doubts Strong Support

By ROBERT BERRELEZ

HAVANA (AP)—Fear is fast replacing the joy that accompanied Fidel Castro's sweep to power nearly two years ago.

By various means, the revolutionary regime is exploiting this fear to help solidify its position. This suggests to observers here that the government itself may have doubts about the depth of its support.

Fear is nothing new to Cubans. It was felt during Fulgencio Batista's dictatorship. Now it is beginning to show again among the usually carefree Cubans. The label "counterrevolutionary," ugliest in revolutionary language, is easy to come by. It can mean prison and even death.

Castro jangled nerves recently when he announced "revolutionary posses would be organized block-by-block to root out conspirators.

Some months previously he had called on the citizenry to inform on unpatriotic neighbors. These informers were officially christened "civic-minded citizens." In Batista's time, Castro's underground followers referred with loathing to informers as "chivatos," freely translated to "bleating goats." After Castro took over, many of these chivatos were imprisoned, some executed.

The restoration of military tribunals has been a grim element in the use of fear as a deterrent to Castro's opponents. The tribunals in 1959 sent more than 500 persons to firing squad deaths after swift trials.

Cubans claim the government has a veritable army of undercover agents and unsalaried informers, male and female, eavesdropping in bars, restaurants, theaters, hotel lobbies and even in taxis, buses and churches.

People in public places stop speaking the instant you walk near them if they don't know you. They eye you carefully. Many speak in whispers, glancing over their shoulders.

"One just doesn't know who to trust," a young Cuban stenographer said.

Castro Forces Chase Foes On Three Fronts

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro's forces were chasing enemies on three fronts today —one of them right in Havana.

Fifteen men convicted of conspiring against the regime made a spectacular escape at dawn Friday from ancient Morro Castle Prison which guards Havana Bay.

Announcing the prison break that night, the Armed Forces Ministry said five navy men charged with guarding the prisoners aided the fugitives. Presumably the five also escaped.

The ministry gave no details of the break, but said it was linked with the landing of a band of armed invaders, three of them Americans, in Oriente Province earlier this week.

Candidates To Intensify Campaigns

11 Democrats, 10 GOP Seeking State, Courthouse Offices

With the Nov. 8 general election just a month from today, 21 candidates for 12 Columbiana County offices are preparing to throw their campaigns into high gear.

Although the Presidential election will overshadow local contests, most Courthouse offices are at stake. Columbiana County will elect two state representatives, two commissioners, sheriff, recorder, probate judge, clerk of courts, prosecuting attorney, treasurer, engineer and coroner.

The opposing tickets were chosen by the two parties in the primary elections May 3. In most cases, the new office-holders elected next month will begin their terms Jan. 1.

The races for state representative, commissioner and sheriff probably will draw most interest. There are 10 Republican candidates and 11 Democrats on the county end of the ballot.

Because of periodic reapportionment which occurs about once in 10 years, Columbiana County will send two representatives to the General Assembly for the 1961-62 term.

The Republican candidates are Rep. Clarence L. (Dutch) Wetzel of Lisbon, seeking a sixth term, and J. Warren Bettis of Salineville, assistant county prosecuting attorney.

The Democratic nominees are Benjamin Barrett of Salem, a high school teacher and former football coach, and John H. Todd, former Lisbon mayor.

A field of 10 sought the representative nominations in the primar-

Program Set For Kennedy's Rally At Salem

A flag - raising ceremony by the color guards of Salem American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars Posts will open the program for the appearance of Sen. John F. Kennedy Sunday afternoon at Reilly Stadium at Salem.

The Leetonia High School Band and the Columbiana majorettes group, the Suzzettes, will give a half-hour program beginning at 5:30 and the Rev. T. G. S. Whitney of the Salem Episcopal Church will give the invocation. Mayor Dean Cranmer will give a brief address of welcome.

Atty. Guy Mauro, county Democratic vice chairman, will present county, state and judicial candidates, and Mrs. Kay Blackburn of Columbiana, county chairwoman, will introduce the various chairwomen. Atty. Paul Tobin will introduce others and Don Gosney of Columbiana, county chairman, will present Gov. Michael DiSalle, and U. S. Sens. Frank Lausche and Stephen Young.

Gov. DiSalle will introduce Rep. Wayne L. Hays, who in turn will present the Presidential candidate. Sen. Kennedy will speak at 6:15.

Sen. Kennedy is coming to the county from Warren, following rallies there and in Youngstown, and after the Salem appearance, will go to Youngstown Airport and emplane for Louisville, Ky. He is due at Pittsburgh late Monday afternoon. He will be accompanied by motorcades to and from Salem.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays said Sen. John F. Kennedy has asked him to participate in a conference on the problems of slum and urban blights at the Penn-Sheraton Hotel in Pittsburgh Monday. Gov. David Lawrence will be honorary chairman.

Bristling TV Debate

Nixon, Kennedy 'Miles Apart' On Campaign Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy fought a bristling television battle Friday night that left them miles apart on most campaign issues.

With millions of Americans looking on and listening in, the unsmiling presidential nominees found common ground on only a few topics.

Neither would go into any summit conference without prior diplomatic spadework and some tangible assurance that Soviet Premier Khrushchev meant to negotiate and not just to grind out propaganda.

If recession threatened, both would consider tax cuts to pump new life into the economy.

Each sees difficult times ahead, with spending for defense, economic assistance and other programs rising.

But from Cuba to Formosa Kennedy and Nixon disagreed on international affairs. They threw sharp remarks at each other about civil rights. They whacked at each other about the nation's position in the cold war. They tangled over the depressed areas problems and economic conditions generally.

Who won? Both sides thought they had, although the debaters themselves said the decision won't be known until next month's election.

This second of four scheduled debates had none of the polite toe-dancing that marked the candidates' first encounter. They never used the word, but each came close to calling the other a liar.

More than once the cameras found Kennedy listening to his Republican opponent with an air of disbelief, a "What's this?" expression on his face.

Nixon, on the other hand, stared grimly straight ahead as his rival spoke, blinking his eyes as he stored up ammunition for an often caustic reply as his rival spoke.

Nixon fielded the first question and started off the "don't agree" note that held throughout most of the crossfire of exchanges.

He didn't agree, he said, with Kennedy's statement as related by a questioner that the Eisenhower administration should take the responsibility for the "loss" of Cuba.

He said he doesn't believe Cuba is lost. He said there isn't any question that the people there who want to be free "are going to be supported and that they will attain their freedom."

But he wanted to make one thing clear, Nixon said: "There isn't any question but that we will defend our rights there."

TV Debates May Develop Into 'Brawl'

Rivals 'Swing' At Each Other From Opening Question

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the tempo keeps picking up in the great presidential debates, we may have a first class brawl yet.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy clashed face to face on television again Friday night. And from the opening question, they began swinging at each other.

This reporter is the only one who has had the good luck to see both debates from inside the studios.

Here's a closeup view of the way it looked:

Their last appearance, you will recall, was sort of a gymnasium workout. Both men were nervous and ill at ease, especially Nixon.

The motto seemed to be: "Well, I agree with Mr. Kennedy on that," or, "I agree with Mr. Nixon."

That all changed Friday night.

It's significant that the first words were spoken by Nixon and they were: "Well, first of all, I don't agree with Sen. Kennedy."

They stayed on this disagreeing note for the rest of the hour.

Even before the debate began it was apparent that this was to be different.

In the Chicago debate both men came in early, and had some trivial chitchat that did little to relieve their tension.

Friday night they seemed to be carefully avoiding each other.

Kennedy was there an hour early; Nixon didn't arrive until 21 minutes later.

They didn't meet until 30 seconds before the debate began and they seemed to be barely cordial to each other.

Motorist, 41 Hurt As Auto Crashes Pole

Pedestrian Leaps To Safety From Lunge Of Calcutta Vehicle

A Calcutta woman was injured slightly and a sanitarian for the City Health Department narrowly escaped being struck as her car smashed into a utility pole in front of City Hall this morning.

Mrs. Ruth E. Whittington, 41, suffered facial injuries in the crash about 9:25 a. m. when she apparently stepped on the gas instead of the brake, police said.

Mrs. Whittington told police she had parked in the first space on the south side of E. 6th St. and just east of the municipally-owned parking lot and had gotten out of her car on the right side to put money in the meter.

Deciding to park closer to the curb, Mrs. Whittington said she started to pull forward when the right front door came open and she reached to close it and then apparently hit the accelerator instead of the brake pedal.

Leaping ahead, the car hit the utility pole with the impact jarring loose the lamp assembly and sending it smashing down onto the sidewalk.

The taillight assembly on the right side of a parked car owned by Virgil A. Williams, 1707 Cleveland Ave., was damaged slightly in the crash. There was extensive damage to the front end of the Whittington sedan.

John Owen, a city sanitarian, said he was crossing in front of the Whittington car when it lurched forward and he had to leap from its path to avoid being pinned against the pole.

A collision late Friday afternoon at Walnut St. and St. Clair Ave. involved cars operated by George K. Guy Jr., 18, of 587 Blackmore St., who was turning south onto Walnut St., and Mrs. C. W. Kress, 1044 Bradshaw Ave., turning west.

Conferees Take Recess To Monday

President Of Union Discloses Deadlock In New York Talks

Negotiations were reported stalemated in contract talks between the United States Potters Association and the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters at New York City.

The report came from Union President E. L. Wheatley, who said "there has been no progress toward agreeing on terms," according to the report of the Associated Press.

The contract talks, which began Tuesday, have been recessed until Monday, Wheatley said.

The association includes nine major American manufacturers of dinnerware.

It has proposed a wage cut of 6 cents an hour as a means of competing with foreign imports and products of nonunion plants.

The union seeks a "substantial" wage increase and other benefits.

According to the employers, present average hourly wage rates are $2.25 for men and $1.69 for women.

Less than half the 17,000 workers in the industry are involved in the negotiations in New York, but the outcome is expected to set a pattern for the remainder of the industry, the union said.

The negotiations are for a contract to replace the present pact expiring Dec. 1.

The current contract was signed May 7, 1959, ending a general strike. It contained a 9-cent "package," including a immediate 6-cent raise.

The IBOP's demands, compiled by the Brotherhood's contract policy committee, included a substantial wage increase, pension plan, more paid holidays and a liberalized vacation plan.

The manufacturers' reply asked a rollback to the 1957 wage levels, or 6 cents per hour less. The association pointed to the "decline in the industry" and greater competition in its appeal for wage relief. It said 14 major producers have either gone bankrupt or liquidated.

It asked "the co-operation of the employes in the survival of the remaining fragment of the industry," the nine remaining semivitreous dinnerware-producing members of the association.

The union countered with the comment that it was an "old familiar cry."

The sessions are being held in the Hotel Edison with Wheatley heading the Brotherhood delegation and John T. Hall and Joseph Wells Jr. co-chairmen of the association's labor committee.

Red Chinese Blast 211 Shells At Quemoys

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The Quemoy Islands were the target Friday night of 211 shells, the Chinese Nationalist defense ministry reported today.

It was the heaviest attack against the offshore islands since the massive bombardments which the Communists uncorked on June 17 and 19 as an avowed gesture against President Eisenhower's Formosa visit.

2 Reported Injured In Irondale Collision

Two persons were reported injured in an auto accident about 10:40 a. m. today on the Irondale-Hammondsville Rd. near Irondale.

The Wintersville State Highway Patrol investigated. Those injured were taken to City Hospital by the Haugh Funeral Home ambulance from Wellsville.

They were identified as Anna Wickham of Irondale and John Williams of Hammondsville.

Bristling TV Debate

Nixon, Kennedy 'Miles Apart' On Campaign Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy fought a bristling television battle Friday night that left them miles apart on most campaign issues.

With millions of Americans looking on and listening in, the unsmiling presidential nominees found common ground on only a few topics.

Neither would go into any summit conference without prior diplomatic spadework and some tangible assurance that Soviet Premier Khrushchev meant to negotiate and not just to grind out propaganda.

If recession threatened, both would consider tax cuts to pump new life into the economy.

Each sees difficult times ahead, with spending for defense, economic assistance and other programs rising.

But from Cuba to Formosa Kennedy and Nixon disagreed on international affairs. They threw sharp remarks at each other about civil rights. They whacked at each other about the nation's position in the cold war. They tangled over the depressed areas problems and economic conditions generally.

Who won? Both sides thought they had, although the debaters themselves said the decision won't be known until next month's election.

This second of four scheduled debates had none of the polite tordancing that marked the candidates' first encounter. They never used the word, but each came close to calling the other a liar.

More than once the cameras found Kennedy listening to his Republican opponent with an air of disbelief, a "What's this?" expression on his face.

Nixon, on the other hand, stared grimly straight ahead as his rival spoke, blinking his eyes as he stored up ammunition for an often caustic reply as his rival spoke.

Nixon fielded the first question and started off the "don't agree" note that held throughout most of the crossfire of exchanges.

He didn't agree, he said, with Kennedy's statement as related by a questioner that the Eisenhower administration should take the responsibility for the "loss" of Cuba.

He said he doesn't believe Cuba is lost. He said there isn't any question that the people there who want to be free "are going to be supported and that they will attain their freedom."

But he wanted to make one thing clear, Nixon said: "There isn't any question but that we will defend our rights there."

TV Debates May Develop Into 'Brawl'

Rivals 'Swing' At Each Other From Opening Question

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the tempo keeps picking up in the great presidential debates, we may have a first class brawl yet.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy clashed face to face on television again Friday night. And from the opening question, they began swinging at each other.

This reporter is the only one who has had the good luck to see both debates from inside the studios.

Here's a closeup view of the way it looked:

Their last appearance, you will recall, was sort of a gymnasium workout. Both men were nervous and ill at ease, especially Nixon.

The motto seemed to be: "Well, I agree with Mr. Kennedy on that," or, "I agree with Mr. Nixon."

That all changed Friday night.

It's significant that the first words were spoken by Nixon and they were: "Well, first of all, I don't agree with Sen. Kennedy."

They stayed on this disagreeing note for the rest of the hour.

Even before the debate began it was apparent that this was to be different.

In the Chicago debate both men came in early, and had some trivial chitchat that did little to relieve their tension.

Friday night they seemed to be carefully avoiding each other.

Kennedy was there an hour early; Nixon didn't arrive until 21 minutes later.

They didn't meet until 30 seconds before the debate began and they seemed to be barely cordial to each other.

Motorist, 41 Hurt As Auto Crashes Pole

Pedestrian Leaps To Safety From Lunge Of Calcutta Vehicle

A Calcutta woman was injured slightly and a sanitarian for the City Health Department narrowly escaped being struck as her car smashed into a utility pole in front of City Hall this morning.

Mrs. Ruth E. Whittington, 41, suffered facial injuries in the crash about 9:25 a. m. when she apparently stepped on the gas instead of the brake, police said.

Mrs. Whittington told police she had parked in the first space on the south side of E. 6th St. and just east of the municipally-owned parking lot and had gotten out of her car on the right side to put money in the meter.

Deciding to park closer to the curb, Mrs. Whittington said she started to pull forward when the right front door came open and she reached to close it and then apparently hit the accelerator instead of the brake pedal.

Leaping ahead, the car hit the utility pole with the impact jarring loose the lamp assembly and sending it smashing down onto the sidewalk.

The taillight assembly on the right side of a parked car owned by Virgil A. Williams, 1707 Cleveland Ave., was damaged slightly in the crash. There was extensive damage to the front end of the Whittington sedan.

John Owen, a city sanitarian, said he was crossing in front of the Whittington car when it lurched forward and he had to leap from its path to avoid being pinned against the pole.

A collision late Friday afternoon at Walnut St. and St. Clair Ave. involved cars operated by George K. Guy Jr., 18, of 587 Blackmore St., who was turning south into Walnut St., and Mrs. C. W. Kress, 1044 Bradshaw Ave., turning west.

Conferees Take Recess To Monday

President Of Union Discloses Deadlock In New York Talks

Negotiations were reported stalemated in contract talks between the United States Potters Association and the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters at New York City.

The report came from Union President E. L. Wheatley, who said "there has been no progress toward agreeing on terms," according to the report of the Associated Press.

The contract talks, which began Tuesday, have been recessed until Monday, Wheatley said.

The association includes nine major American manufacturers of dinnerware.

It has proposed a wage cut of 6 cents an hour as a means of competing with foreign imports and products of nonunion plants.

The union seeks a "substantial" wage increase and other benefits.

According to the employers, present average hourly wage rates are $2.25 for men and $1.60 for women.

Less than half the 17,000 workers in the industry are involved in the negotiations in New York, but the outcome is expected to set a pattern for the remainder of the industry, the union said.

The negotiations are for a contract to replace the present pact expiring Dec. 1.

The current contract was signed May 7, 1959, ending a general strike. It contained a 9-cent "package," including a immediate 6-cent raise.

The IBOP's demands, compiled by the Brotherhood's contract policy committee, included a substantial wage increase, pension plan, more paid holidays and a liberalized vacation plan.

The manufacturers' reply asked a rollback to the 1957 wage levels, or 6 cents per hour less. The association pointed to the "decline in the industry" and greater competition in its appeal for wage relief. It said 14 major producers have either gone bankrupt or liquidated.

It asked "the co-operation of the employes in the survival of the remaining fragment of the industry," the nine remaining semivitreous dinnerware-producing members of the association.

The union countered with the comment that it was an "old familiar cry."

The sessions are being held in the Hotel Edison with Wheatley heading the Brotherhood delegation and John T. Hall and Joseph Wells Jr. co-chairmen of the association's labor committee.

Debate

Kennedy replied tartly he never said Cuba was lost but only that "today Cuba is lost to freedom."

Accusing Nixon of having praised the competence and stability of the Batista dictatorship in 1955, he added: "I hope some day it (Cuba) will rise, but I don't think it will rise if we continue the same policy toward Cuba that we did in recent years, and in fact toward all Latin America."

The candidates clashed just as acridly over the defense of Formosa, held by the Chinese Nationalists. Kennedy said the islands of Quemoy and Matsu, off the coast of China, had been called indefensible in 1958 by Christian A. Herter, then undersecretary of state, as well as by military leaders.

"I think it is unwise to take the chance of being dragged into a war which may lead to a world war over two islands which are not strategically defensible, which are not, according to their testimony, essential to the defense of Formosa," he said.

Nixon fired back that he completely disagreed with Kennedy.

"Now, I think as far as Quemoy and Matsu are concerned that the question is not the two little pieces of real estate," the vice president said. "They are unimportant. It isn't the few people who live on them. They are not too important. It is the principle involved."

He said that if the United States forced its Nationalist allies off the islands, a chain reaction might result.

"In my opinion," he said, "this is the same kind of woolly thinking that led to disaster for America in Korea. I am against it. I would never tolerate it as president of the United States, and I will hope that Sen. Kennedy will change his mind if he should be elected."

A question about the U2 spy plane incident brought from Kennedy the charge that Nixon had "distorted" a statement the Democratic nominee made last May that it might have been wise for President Eisenhower to express regrets to Khrushchev if that would have saved the summit conference.

Kennedy said the United States had expressed regrets to Cuba's Fidel Castro last winter, to the Soviets for a flight over their country in 1958 and to East Germany for another flight. He said the Soviets had expressed regrets over a 1953 Bering Sea incident and the Chinese Communists over a 1956 plane incident.

He said that "rather than that lie we told" about the U2's being a weather plane, "it would have been far better for us to have followed the common diplomatic procedure of expressing regrets and then try to move on."

date, then I can give no such assurances."

4. He called for a special session of the Assembly "to discuss just one question, that of elaborating a disarmament agreement and the appropriate measures of control." He wants it held in Europe no later than April next year and said Geneva, Moscow or Leningrad would do as a site.

5. Asked whether he would bow to the wishes of the Assembly if it voted, by two-thirds majority for U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to remain at his post, Khrushchev said he would not accept the decision even if the vote were "99 per cent."

Kennedy replied tartly he never said Cuba was lost but only that "today Cuba is lost to freedom."

Accusing Nixon of having praised the competence and stability of the Batista dictatorship in 1955, he added: "I hope some day it (Cuba) will rise, but I don't think it will rise if we continue the same policy toward Cuba that we did in recent years, and in fact toward all Latin America."

The candidates clashed just as acridly over the defense of Formosa, held by the Chinese Nationalists. Kennedy said the islands of Quemoy and Matsu, off the coast of China, had been called indefensible in 1958 by Christian A. Herter, then undersecretary of state, as well as by military leaders.

"I think it is unwise to take the chance of being dragged into a war which may lead to a world war over two islands which are not strategically defensible, which are not, according to their testimony, essential to the defense of Formosa," he said.

Nixon fired back that he completely disagreed with Kennedy.

"Now, I think as far as Quemoy and Matsu are concerned that the question is not the two little pieces of real estate," the vice president said. "They are unimportant. It isn't the few people who live on them. They are not too important. It is the principle involved."

He said that if the United States forced its Nationalist allies off the islands, a chain reaction might result.

"In my opinion," he said, "this is the same kind of woolly thinking that led to disaster for America in Korea. I am against it. I would never tolerate it as president of the United States, and I will hope that Sen. Kennedy will change his mind if he should be elected."

A question about the U2 spy plane incident brought from Kennedy the charge that Nixon had "distorted" a statement the Democratic nominee made last May that it might have been wise for President Eisenhower to express regrets to Khrushchev if that would have saved the summit conference.

Kennedy said the United States had expressed regrets to Cuba's Fidel Castro last winter, to the Soviets for a flight over their country in 1958 and to East Germany for another flight. He said the Soviets had expressed regrets over a 1953 Bering Sea incident and the Chinese Communists over a 1956 plane incident.

He said that "rather than that lie we told" about the U2's being a weather plane, "it would have been far better for us to have followed the common diplomatic procedure of expressing regrets and then try to move on."

date, then I can give no such assurances."

4. He called for a special session of the Assembly "to discuss just one question, that of elaborating a disarmament agreement and the appropriate measures of control." He wants it held in Europe no later than April next year and said Geneva, Moscow or Leningrad would do as a site.

5. Asked whether he would bow to the wishes of the Assembly if it voted, by two-thirds majority for U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to remain at his post, Khrushchev said he would not accept the decision even if the vote were "99 per cent."

And Sometimes We Learn

One new thought is taking shape under the blows from the Commuist hammer and the gouges of the Communist sickle.

The non-Communist nations and the neutral nations are not vulnerable to the bluster that Premier Khrushchev came to the United Nations to use.

They seem to be better poised and better able to evaluate the bluster than the United States, which always is crushed by evidence that it is not loved by its neighbors.

Even Americans, having seen Khrushchev put on his arm-swinging performances twice in one year, are beginning to sense something about this sinister man.

Whatever the explanation for his behavior, he is susceptible to the same kind of analysis that let all the air out of the inflated image of Benito Mussolini, the exaggerated power of Adolf Hitler and the ramrod ogre called Tojo. Khrushchev gets into his pants one leg at a time, just like the men who have been quivering with dread of what he might do.

His potentialities of doing things are not what he proclaims them to be. They are the potentialities of the Soviet Union, which is powerful in propaganda but weak in performance.

Russia has made tremendous progress.

It is capable of making more tremendous progress. But these things are just as true of the United States. They are truer, in fact, because the United States has learned how to release the potentialities of free individuals, while the Soviet Union has learned how to release only the potentialities of servants of the state.

It is reported from the United Nations that the calmest man there is Dag Hammarskjold, who has been put under direct attack by Khrushchev. It is a reminder that in other intervals of hammer-and-sickle swinging, the calmest people always have been those who lived closest to the Soviet Union — the Finns, Turks, Greeks and Japanese.

They have known for centuries about the Russian people under all kinds of governments. They and other nearby neighbors of Russia can bring a kind of realism to bear on the Soviet Union that is denied Americans, who are still preoccupied with Bolsheviks and "Red scares."

There is hope for more U.S. realism. Khrushchev at close range being viewed without undue excitement by the other delegates to the sprawling "parliament of man" on the East River is not half as formidable as he was when visualized as a superman who could blow up the world by pushing a button in the distant Kremlin.

Join Civic Music

The Civic Music Association is about to begin its annual fall membership drive.

In the interest of a cultural phase of the community's life, we hope the campaign will be a success, with "Standing Room Only" for every performance when the programs get under way later.

Through Civic Music, East Liverpool and district residents are permitted to enjoy concerts by some of the outstanding performers in the field of music — not only here but in some of our neighboring communities who join in an "exchange" plan provided by Civic Music.

Civic Music shouldn't be taken for granted. Only through a booming membership can the funds be realized which are necessary to assure topnotch entertainment. Should the coming drive fall short, the program in turn would suffer or be abandoned completely.

That is something it is to be hoped won't happen. If you are in a position to do so, join the Civic Music Association. The enjoyment you derive from the concerts will more than repay for the expense involved.

Many More Than Two Delinquents

In due course of time, New York City will be without the presence of two of the young hoodlums who caused the violent deaths of a pair of innocent children on a New York playground. The two will be executed. Their companions in the crime will serve long prison sentences.

This was one of New York City's most atrocious juvenile crimes. The murder grew out of uncontrollable gang warfare among children crowded into the city's tenement areas and forced to run wild by the pressure of an environment that would be called inhuman if inflicted on animals.

The social explosion this has caused is one of New York City's deepest concerns, although rarely mentioned. In many of the city's areas, the safety of pedestrians and even of motorists cannot be guaranteed. The police cannot give New York City residents as good protection as they have been giving visitors attending the General Assembly of the United Nations. Nikita Khrushchev is safer than a New York City taxpayer.

Thousands of people have left the city, and thousands more would leave if they had somewhere to go. An insoluble problem has had an inevitable consequence. Unable to assure the safety of its own residents, New York City is reconciled to an exodus that eventually will drain away the bulk of its residents, leaving an inanimate residue of towering office buildings occupied only during working hours.

Clear Signs Needed

While more satisfactory markings are being considered for the intersection at W. 5th and Jefferson Sts., it seems advisable that the markings at other turns and one-way streets be reviewed with the objective of corrective action where needed.

Being close at hand, Washington St. is a case in point. Frequently, out-of-town drivers can be seen heading the wrong way on the one-way thoroughfare. The logical assumption is that the small signs on the traffic light aren't doing the job. Larger and more distinct cautionary signs at the street level are in order.

This is but one example. There may be others.

The Midland motorist who so clearly explained his plight when arrested for making an improper turn has performed a service by making us cognizant of the need to see that something is done to prevent other visiting motorists from becoming involved in similar situations.

Strike Up The Band!

East Liverpool High School's Blue and White marching band is becoming more entertaining with each football game.

Last night's performance was its best of the season. The peppy, well-played music and fast-moving formations blended into an enjoyable program.

The band has its problems like a football team. It is hit by graduation each year. It must spend hours at practice and above all its members must go all the way on both offense and defense. There are no substitutions while the show is in progress.

A loud fanfare is in order for Director Vince Maola and his splendid group of musicians.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Imaginary conversation between a baseball fan and a foreign diplomat long limited to events at U.N.:

Diplomat: There's an enormous crowd here. There must be something extra important on the agenda.

Fan: Yes, the RBI issue is up for settlement.

Diplomat: What's RBI mean?

Fan: Runs batted in.

Diplomat: Is there to be a vote on it?

Fan: No; it's a matter of power demonstration.

Diplomat: What's going on down there now?

Fan: It's just the workout and practice preliminary to the real battle, just as in those U.N. fights.

Diplomat: What's that man wearing a steel mask and chest protector for? Does it mean Khrushchev has ignored his Manhattan limits and will get into this disturbance, too?

Fan: Nikita ain't in the lineup but he would surprise nobody getting into the act. If he can't, he will probably blame Hammarskjold.

Diplomat: Do I hear somebody pounding a table with fists?

Fan: It's just a baseball cash customer arguing at the hot-dog counter.

Diplomat: Are all those men assembling at the home plate neutrals about to offer a resolution?

Fan: There ain't a neutral in the place. They are managers and umpires discussing ground rules.

Diplomat: What are ground rules?

Fan: No U.N. delegate would understand. But the effect is the same as reaching an understanding on how many bases a dictator can get on a long driven insult and whether a fist which smashes a table but bounces back onto the field is good for two bases or a home run.

Diplomat: What are those flags?

Fan: The newly discovered colony of Pittsburgh and the old capitalistic State of Stengle Land.

Diplomat: Who is that who just came to bat with a feather duster and insisted upon straddling the plate.

Fan: THAT MUST BE NEHRU!

Allen Funt's Candid Camera finally landed a well-deserved big spot on TV after more than a decade. It has new format with Arthur Godfrey in the act.

Godfrey gives it a warm touch but takes too much time away from camera episodes and makes the big mistake of taking the surprise element out of them by a complete forecast.

Funt, who always got the candid camera working fast and often, is just a straight man for Arthur.

It was Funt's complete mastery of the show that made it so fast moving.

The Power Of Faith

by Howard Brodie

"Love is our highest word, and the synonym of God," wrote Ralph Waldo Emerson in one of his inspiring essays. "He who knows that power is in the soul, that he is weak only because he has looked for good out of him and elsewhere, and so perceiving, throws himself unhesitatingly on his thought, instantly rights himself . . ."

Emerson lived his belief that God is within each man and that each man contributes to the whole of mankind as he recognizes his own value. He encouraged and assisted other writers. He withstood public scorn as he protested against slavery. He refused to lecture, though he needed money, when asked to refrain from controversial subjects. He inspired men to believe in themselves: "Trust thyself: every heart vibrates to that iron string."

Industrialist Challenges Unions

By Victor Riesel

DALLAS, Texas. If I read the message right, a speech has been hurled as a challenge here which may be remembered as long as the Alamo. It was delivered by a United States Steel Corp. vice president who hundreds of newsmen followed almost night and day not too long ago.

Victor Riesel

The speech said, in effect, that industry is tired of being pushed around by national unions.

No industrialist has spoken so bluntly as R. Heath Larry did here the other day. Larry was one of the four executives who represented the steel industry in its negotiations with the United Steel Workers during the 116-day strike.

Larry told his audience of middle echelon executives that he believed the time had come for labor leaders to stop shouting that industry was "union busting" every time America's businessmen refused to concede to labor's demands.

LARRY'S SPEECH, obscured by the heavy political and foreign news, will make as much history, for it urged U.S. businessmen to go out and compete with the union chiefs for the loyalty of their millions of workers.

Since Larry is U.S. Steel's administrative vice president-labor relations, and since this corporation frequently has been the bellwether of American industrialism, his speech could well be interpreted as a call to action which will be listened to and implemented.

"The time is long since past," was the message from Larry, "for unions to be taking refuge behind the hysterical claim that employers are trying to destroy the union movement just because they may indulge in the constitutional privilege of free speech in trying to have employes understand the economic facts of life from their standpoint."

Larry told the unions to change this attitude if they want industrial peace.

Larry also rejected such labor-management summit conferences as George Meany suggested to President Eisenhower.

The steel executive also replied indirectly to a suggestion of steel now one of John Kennedy's closest advisers on labor.

GOLDBERG has asked for a labor-management-public board to advise future presidents on future labor crises.

Such parleys would be as "potentially dangerous," said Larry, as compulsory arbitration which would have some government board fix prices and profits as well as wages.

Turning to the national union chiefs, Larry laid it on the line.

Labor's philosophy, Larry said, "seems to involve the concept that a union is insecure as long as there is any group of employes anywhere who may have chosen not to rely upon the bargaining services of a union.

"It seems to involve the concept that a union must stay at arm's length from the employer and, in fact, cultivate the image that the employer is the natural enemy of the employes, who must be beaten down from time to time.

"It seems to involve the concept that a bargaining settlement must be a 'victory' for the union rather than an acceptable accomodation of mutual interests.

"In short, it has seemed to postulate requirements for union security which are completely at odds with the successful operation of the competitive enterprise system."

THERE WERE other criticisms —including a charge that unions are so big they may some day control the nation politically and economically. But what will stir union chiefs most is Larry's call to action.

"Communications," said Larry, "may be an overworked word, but it is certainly an underworked art from the management standpoint." He meant communications between the employer and his work force.

"With or without union objections," said the steel company executive, "American business management must proceed to redevelop communications with its employes.

"If employes do not understand the economic facts surrounding the company in which they work. . . if they have no sound basis for appreciating how their interests are tied to their company's financial health . . . how can a company complain if employes blindly follow union leadership which, for its own political purposes, may follow a course of constantly smothering the opportunity of free enterprise. . . ."

That should do it.

Bacteria Counter

By Thomas R. Henry

An electronic device just announced by the Army Chemical Corps promises to free medical researchers of one of their most time-consuming tasks, counting bacteria.

Much research in the field of medical biology is dependent on getting an accurate count of these organisms, so minute they are invisible to the naked eye.

Under standard procedures, a fluid containing the bacterial to be counted is spread thinly over a plate and incubated. Each individual germ gives rise to a colony of thousands which is large enough to be seen as a dot on the plate. Visual counting of the colonies can take hours. The new device yields the total in a second.

The instrument functions by scanning the surface of the incubated plate with a narrow pencil of light. The ray moves across the plate 1,000 times a second, completely scanning the surface by advancing about the width of a hair for each line of scanning. Changes in optical density between the plate surface and the opaque colonies are detected by a photomultiplier tube.

"The operating secret of the device," says a corps report, "lies in the action of its 'memory'—a quartz ultrasonic relay line—which keeps track of the details of the previous tour of the scanning pencil across the plate.

Electronic circuits compare these two records to determine which colonies are being encountered for the first time.

"Each new colony is counted in the registers of the machine. Repeated scans of a previously recognized colony are canceled out by the comparing circuits, and hence not counted. Sources of error are not large in relation to other experimental errors inherent in biological research."

The apparatus is expected to find further use in counting other invisibly minute objects.

Real Issues Missed

By David Lawrence

TV 'Debate' Lacks True Political Depth

Irrespective of which presidential candidate is supposed to have made the "better impression" on television's "great debates," the fact remains that when a theatrical exhibition, with 2½-minute comments by the party nominees, is substituted for a dignified presentation at length of the issues of the campaign, the American electoral system is hurt rather than helped.

David Lawrence

Logically, if the stunt means that people are going to select a president largely on the basis of how likeable he is on the screen, then the day may come when a Bob Hope or a George Gobel or crooners like Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra will be given consideration by national conventions—for, on the basis of a winning personality, they would be regarded as sure "vote-getters."

Television could readily have set aside two hours a night for an exhaustive discussion of the principal issues separately by each nominee over a period of several days in the last two weeks of the campaign and this would have helped the American voters to become more familiar with the basic questions.

In a sparring match that is called a debate, the slick phrase and the smart answer take the place of the reasoned statement.

WHAT IS WRONG with the reading of a spech prepared by each candidate after a thorough study of fundamental issues?

Why isn't there a demand upon each candidate that he present comprehensively, and not in smart-aleck sentences, his views on the burning questions of the day, as for instance:

1. "What do you propose to do, if elected president, to prevent the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars to innocent bystanders in a strike like that which suspended operations on the Pennsylvania Railroad or in a strike like that which stagnated the whole steel industry a few months ago?"

2. "What do you propose to do to recover or get adequate compensation for American properties which now have been confiscated by Castro? Would you use the military forces of the United States to protect them, or would you do nothing but 'protest' through the Organization of American States or the United Nations?"

3. "What do you propose to do to maintain the free-enterprise system in America against encroachment by the federal government in the field of natural resources as well as in business generally?"

4. "What do you propose to do about the right of citizens to work at their jobs and to prevent them from being ousted by unions as a punishment because they do not believe in being members of organizations that participate in politics and endorse candidates with whose views these same workers may differ?"

5. "What do you propose to do to prevent the cost of living from going higher and the purchasing power of the dollar from declining further?"

6. "What do you propose to do to keep the federal government from using appropriations of its money to influence the state school systems in what they teach, as is done in Communist countries where the central government controls education?"

THERE ARE OTHER vital issues which the candidates are avoiding. They talk in generalities, because this is considered the politically expedient thing to do but a television presentation in which each candidate has plenty of time to explain his viewpoint and to bring even prepared declarations to the speaker's table would give the American people more real information than they can get out of a staged performance with the type of panel questions now being employed that cannot possibly be answered thoroughly by either candidate.

The "Great Debate" on TV is a discouraging development in American politics. Showmanship ahs converted the duel between the candidates into a dramatic contest in facial make-up and theatrical tricks.

A presidential campaign involves grave decisions for the American people. They are entitled to know exactly how Sen. Kennedy's policies in dealing with Khrushchev will differ from those of President Eisenhower, which Vice President Nixon endorses but which the Massachusetts senator says have lost "prestige" for America.

The people of the United States are entitled to know, moreover, what steps military and otherwise will be taken by their government versus the Soviet Union to maintain peace—now Communism's invasion of Africa will be checked.

The people have the right to be informed so that they may determine for themselves whether a change in administration policies will mean peace or will unwittingly encourage the Communists to intensify their "cold war" and perhaps plunge us into a "hot war."

Families with young men of draft age want to be told what lies ahead for them—and it is a safe bet that the "great debates" on television will not thoroughly inform them on vital points such as these that could mean the difference between life or death for their boys.

Cotton Corners

By Truman Twill

Dear Nephew: If you want to talk about the most remarkable things we've ever done in this country, I'll skip free universal education and our inventions and get down to something really important.

We have learned how to distribute goods. No other nation can make that statement. They have not mastered distribution, so they have become slaves of their failure.

Two of our distributing institutions stagger me whenever I think about them. One is the supermarket. The other is the filling station.

I have been driving an automobile for half a century. I have been going to grocery stores longer than that. I have seen the evolution of both of these distribution miracles.

The miracle, of course, happened farther up the line, in the petroleum industry and the food industry. The filling station and the supermarket are just proof of American genius at work.

Like millions of motorists, I carry a credit card in my wallet. It gives me the option to buy gasoline, oil, tires and various accessories with no immediate exchange of cash. I can buy from not only retail outlets selling the particular brand of products I usually buy but from other retail outlets if I choose.

What I buy will be of uniform and dependable quality. The service I get will be uniform in quality. I won't need to wonder about the reliability of the help or the intentions of the management.

If you were old enough to remember the nightmare it used to be to buy gasoline and oil away from home and the necessity of having enough cash to cover any eventuality, such as multiple blowouts, you would understand why I purr with satisfaction every time I roll into a filling station and tell the attendant what I need, with assurance that he wants to make me a satisfied customer.

The supermarket is bigger and less personal. But when I get loose in one with a cart and no supervision on the part of your begrudging auntie, I feel like a king whose good will is being buttered up by a wealthy neighbor.

Everything a man could dream of is there somewhere — not just one of a kind, either, but in case-lots. And there's more where that came from.

I can rely on the quality as well as the quantity. I am not the prisoner of one brand or one grade. Here again, you cannot know what it was like when we went to a grocery store and had to take one grade or one brand and like it, because that's all there was, there wasn't any more.

Nor can you remember when an orange was a rarity and everybody in the North did not see a fresh vegetable from September until spring radishes were ready to eat the next May.

We were able to get around some annoyances by using mail order catalogues; that was the beginning of modern distribution. But goods didn't really get distributed until automotive transportation made it possible for a supermarket in the far corner of Hell's Half Acre to put on its shelves the same things you found everywhere else. And that brings us back to the petroleum industry's miraculous distribution of fuel, tires, oil and so on. That's what made the automotive miracle possible.

When you start to tell me where you think we've distinguished ourselves, I'll take distribution and rest my case on the petroleum and food industries. Your aunt says to tell you hello and we both send our regards to the family.

The speech said, in effect, that industry is tired of being pushed around by national unions.

No industrialist has spoken so bluntly as R. Heath Larry did here the other day. Larry was one of the four executives who represented the steel industry in its negotiations with the United Steel Workers during the 116-day strike.

Larry told his audience of middle echelon executives that he believed the time had come for labor leaders to stop shouting that industry was "union busting" every time America's businessmen refused to concede to labor's demands.

LARRY'S SPEECH, obscured by the heavy political and foreign news, will make as much history, for it urged U.S. businessmen to go out and compete with the union chiefs for the loyalty of their millions of workers.

Since Larry is U.S. Steel's administrative vice president-labor relations, and since this corporation frequently has been the bellwether of American industrialism, his speech could well be interpreted as a call to action which will be listened to and implemented.

"The time is long since past," was the message from Larry, "for unions to be taking refuge behind the hysterical claim that employers are trying to destroy the union movement just because they may indulge in the constitutional privilege of free speech in trying to have employees understand the economic facts of life from their standpoint."

Larry told the unions to change this attitude if they want industrial peace.

Larry also rejected such labor-management summit conferences as George Meany suggested to President Eisenhower.

The steel executive also replied indirectly to a suggestion of steel now one of John Kennedy's closest advisers on labor.

GOLDBERG has asked for a labor-management-public board to advise future presidents on future labor crises.

Such parleys would be as "potentially dangerous," said Larry, as compulsory arbitration which would have some government board fix prices and profits as well as wages.

Turning to the national union chiefs, Larry laid it on the line.

Labor's philosophy, Larry said, "seems to involve the concept that a union is insecure as long as there is any group of employes anywhere who may have chosen not to rely upon the bargaining services of a union.

"It seems to involve the concept that a union must stay at arm's length from the employer and, in fact, cultivate the image that the employer is the natural enemy of the employes, who must be beaten down from time to time.

"It seems to involve the concept that a bargaining settlement must be a 'victory' for the union rather than an acceptable accomodation of mutual interests.

"In short, it has seemed to postulate requirements for union security which are completely at odds with the successful operation of the competitive enterprise system."

THERE WERE other criticisms—including a charge that unions are so big they may some day control the nation politically and economically. But what will stir union chiefs most is Larry's call to action.

"Communications," said Larry, "may be an overworked word, but it is certainly an underworked art from the management standpoint." He meant communications between the employer and his work force.

"With or without union objections," said the steel company executive, "American business management must proceed to redevelop communications with its employes.

"If employes do not understand the economic facts surrounding the company in which they work . . . if they have no sound basis for appreciating how their interests are tied to their company's financial health . . . how can a company complain if employes blindly follow union leadership which, for its own political purposes, may follow a course of constantly smothering the opportunity of free enterprise. . . ."

That should do it.

Bacteria Counter

By Thomas R. Henry

An electronic device just announced by the Army Chemical Corps promises to free medical researchers of one of their most time-consuming tasks, counting bacteria.

Much research in the field of medical biology is dependent on getting an accurate count of these organisms, so minute they are invisible to the naked eye.

Under standard procedures, a fluid containing the bacterial to be counted is spread thinly over a plate and incubated. Each individual germ gives rise to a colony of thousands which is large enough to be seen as a dot on the plate. Visual counting of the colonies can take hours. The new device yields the total in a second.

The instrument functions by scanning the surface of the incubated plate with a narrow pencil of light. The ray moves across the plate 1,000 times a second, completely scanning the surface by advancing about the width of a hair for each line of scanning. Changes in optical density between the plate surface and the opaque colonies are detected by a photomultiplier tube.

"The operating secret of the device," says a corps report, "lies in the action of its 'memory'—a quartz ultrasonic relay line—which keeps track of the details of the previous tour of the scanning pencil across the plate.

Electronic circuits compare these two records to determine which colonies are being encountered for the first time.

"Each new colony is counted in the registers of the machine. Repeated scans of a previously recognized colony are canceled out by the comparing circuits, and hence not counted. Sources of error are not large in relation to other experimental errors inherent in biological research."

The apparatus is expected to find further use in counting other invisibly minute objects.

Real Issues Missed

By David Lawrence

TV 'Debate' Lacks True Political Depth

Irrespective of which presidential candidate is supposed to have made the "better impression" on television's "great debates," the fact remains that when a theatrical exhibition, with 2½-minute comments by the party nominees, is substituted for a dignified presentation at length of the issues of the campaign, the American electoral system is hurt rather than helped.

David Lawrence

Logically, if the stunt means that people are going to select a president largely on the basis of how likeable he is on the screen, then the day may come when a Bob Hope or a George Gobel or crooners like Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra will be given consideration by national conventions—for, on the basis of a winning personality, they would be regarded as sure "vote-getters."

Television could readily have set aside two hours a night for an exhaustive discussion of the principal issues separately by each nominee over a period of several days in the last two weeks of the campaign and this would have helped the American voters to become more familiar with the basic questions.

In a sparring match that is called a debate, the slick phrase and the smart answer take the place of the reasoned statement.

WHAT IS WRONG with the reading of a speech prepared by each candidate after a thorough study of fundamental issues?

Why isn't there a demand upon each candidate that he present comprehensively, and not in smart-aleck sentences, his views on the burning questions of the day, as for instance:

1. "What do you propose to do, if elected president, to prevent the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars to innocent bystanders in a strike like that which suspended operations on the Pennsylvania Railroad or in a strike like that which stagnated the whole steel industry a few months ago?"

2. "What do you propose to do to recover or get adequate compensation for American properties which now have been confiscated by Castro? Would you use the military forces of the United States to protect them, or would you do nothing but 'protest' through the Organization of American States or the United Nations?"

3. "What do you propose to do to maintain the free-enterprise system in America against encroachment by the federal government in the field of natural resources as well as in business generally?"

4. "What do you propose to do about the right of citizens to work at their jobs and to prevent them from being ousted by unions as a punishment because they do not believe in being members of organizations that participate in politics and endorse candidates with whose views these same workers may differ?"

5. "What do you propose to do to prevent the cost of living from going higher and the purchasing power of the dollar from declining further?"

6. "What do you propose to do to keep the federal government from using appropriations of its money to influence the state school systems in what they teach, as is done in Communist countries where the central government controls education?"

THERE ARE OTHER vital issues which the candidates are avoiding. They talk in generalities, because this is considered the politically expedient thing to do but a television presentation in which each candidate has plenty of time to explain his viewpoint and to bring even prepared declarations to the speaker's table would give the American people more real information than they can get out of a staged performance with the type of panel questions now being employed that cannot possibly be answered thoroughly by either candidate.

The "Great Debate" on TV is a discouraging development in American politics. Showmanship has converted the duel between the candidates into a dramatic contest in facial make-up and theatrical tricks.

A presidential campaign involves grave decisions for the American people. They are entitled to know exactly how Sen. Kennedy's policies in dealing with Khrushchev will differ from those of President Eisenhower, which Vice President Nixon endorses but which the Massachusetts senator says have lost "prestige" for America.

The people of the United States are entitled to know, moreover, what steps military and otherwise will be taken by their government versus the Soviet Union to maintain peace—now Communism's invasion of Africa will be checked.

The people have the right to be informed so that they may determine for themselves whether a change in administration policies will mean peace or will unwittingly encourage the Communists to intensify their "cold war" and perhaps plunge us into a "hot war."

Families with young men of draft age want to be told what lies ahead for them—and it is a safe bet that the "great debates" on television will not thoroughly inform them on vital points such as these that could mean the difference between life or death for their boys.

Cotton Corners

By Truman Twill

Dear Nephew: If you want to talk about the most remarkable things we've ever done in this country, I'll skip free universal education and our inventions and get down to something really important.

We have learned how to distribute goods. No other nation can make that statement. They have not mastered distribution, so they have become slaves of their failure.

Two of our distributing institutions stagger me whenever I think about them. One is the supermarket. The other is the filling station.

I have been driving an automobile for half a century. I have been going to grocery stores longer than that. I have seen the evolution of both of these distribution miracles.

The miracle, of course, happened farther up the line, in the petroleum industry and the food industry. The filling station and the supermarket are just proof of American genius at work.

Like millions of motorists, I carry a credit card in my wallet. It gives me the option to buy gasoline, oil, tires and various accessories with no immediate exchange of cash. I can buy from not only retail outlets selling the particular brand of products I usually buy but from other retail outlets if I choose.

What I buy will be of uniform and dependable quality. The service I get will be uniform in quality. I won't need to wonder about the reliability of the help or the intentions of the management.

If you were old enough to remember the nightmare it used to be to buy gasoline and oil away from home and the necessity of having enough cash to cover any eventuality, such as multiple blowouts, you would understand why I purr with satisfaction every time I roll into a filling station and tell the attendant what I need, with assurance that he wants to make me a satisfied customer.

The supermarket is bigger and less personal. But when I get loose in one with a cart and no supervision on the part of your begrudging aunts, I feel like a king whose good will is being buttered up by a wealthy neighbor.

Everything a man could dream of is there somewhere — not just one of a kind, either, but in crates. And there's more where that came from.

I can rely on the quality as well as the quantity. I am not the prisoner of one brand or one grade. Here again, you cannot know what it was like when we went to a grocery store and had to take one grade or one brand and like it, because that's all there was, there wasn't any more.

Nor can you remember when an orange was a rarity and everybody in the North did not see a fresh vegetable from September until spring radishes were ready to eat the next May.

We were able to get around some annoyances by using mail order catalogues; that was the beginning of modern distribution. But goods didn't really get distributed until automotive transportation made it possible for a supermarket in the far corner of Hell's Half Acre to put on its shelves the same things you found everywhere else. And that brings us back to the petroleum industry's miraculous distribution of fuel, tires, oil and so on. That's what made the automotive miracle possible.

When you start to tell me where you think we've distinguished ourselves, I'll take distribution and rest my case on the petroleum and food industries. Your aunt says to tell you hello and we both send our regards to the family.

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

Why Not Try 'Really Asking' God?

On March 12, 1960, a woman who for many years has been a member of my church, the Marble Collegiate Church of New York, sat down and wrote me an extremely interesting letter. After first remarking appreciatively what a wonderful peace she had experienced during the service the preceding Sunday, she wrote: "I remember so well now when it was that I first began to pray really. For a long time, as convincing as your sermons seemed to be, I just couldn't believe that anything like an answered prayer could ever happen to me. . ."

MARVELOUS things could happen for other people, apparently—but not for her. How many times have we encountered the same strange assumption!

"Then one Sunday," her letter continues, "a reference was made to a great big prayer in which Mrs. Peale had a part. Right then and there I commenced to ask myself if there could be any reason why God would hear a prayer for Mrs. Peale and He wouldn't hear one for me.

"To my surprise there was a direct answer, and I only had to wait three days for it."

Now a person often has to wait much longer than three days and pray and pray and keep on praying before an answer comes. In letting this woman receive an answer so speedily perhaps the Lord wanted to startle her into further thinking. At any rate she drew a very sensible inference:

"It was evident that I needed to learn more about prayer. So I took advantage of a series of talks on prayer which were being given at that time.

"I think," she concludes, "that my faith in prayer has developed rather slowly under crisis, and I still don't know too much about it, but I am sure of it now."

—:—

IF YOU ARE not getting your problems solved, it just could be that you have not been praying enough. Maybe you should try asking God about it.

Or it could be that you have prayed, but only half-heartedly, in a perfunctory way. Notice the woman's phrase about how she "first began to pray really." The significant word is really.

It is possible to go through the motions and formalities of prayer every day in the year without ever really getting your mind and heart lifted up into the kind of condition that brings real help and guidance. An old man whom I met one time stated it well in his picturesque language. He said the trouble with most prayers is, "They're so thin they ain't got no suction to 'em."

I think most of us can learn much, to our enormous benefit, from the great text beginning, "Ask, and it shall be given you." It continues: "Seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." If you study these words, you will observe that they call upon us to show initiative, desire and force if we want God's help; to put forth energy and to be persistent. Ask. . .seek. . . knock These are powerful verbs of action

WHEN YOU want something or have a problem to solve, do you actively seek the ways and means? Do you earnestly look for the solution? Or do you just vaguely hope it will somehow come to you?

Do you systematically knock on all doors you know of that might logically take you closer to an answer — or just knock at one or two and let it go at that? Do you knock boldly, resolutely; or so timidly with such zephyr touch you could expect barely to be heard?

And do you ask with the faith and the expectancy that make it possible for help to come through to you? Do you watch for your answer? Do you listen? Do you believe you will get it?

Be bigger, stronger, more persistent in your praying. Try really asking.

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

Why Not Try 'Really Asking' God?

On March 12, 1960, a woman who for many years has been a member of my church, the Marble Collegiate Church of New York, sat down and wrote me an extremely interesting letter. After first remarking appreciatively what a wonderful peace she had experienced during the service the preceding Sunday, she wrote: "I remember so well now when it was that I first began to pray really. For a long time, as convincing as your sermons seemed to be, I just couldn't believe that anything like an answered prayer could ever happen to me. . ."

MARVELOUS things could happen for other people, apparently—but not for her. How many times have we encountered the same strange assumption!

"Then one Sunday," her letter continues, "a reference was made to a great big prayer in which Mrs. Peale had a part. Right then and there I commenced to ask myself if there could be any reason why God would hear a prayer for Mrs. Peale and He wouldn't hear one for me.

"To my surprise there was a direct answer, and I only had to wait three days for it."

Now a person often has to wait much longer than three days and pray and pray and keep on praying before an answer comes. In letting this woman receive an answer so speedily perhaps the Lord wanted to startle her into further thinking. At any rate she drew a very sensible inference:

"It was evident that I needed to learn more about prayer. So I took advantage of a series of talks on prayer which were being given at that time.

"I think," she concludes, "that my faith in prayer has developed rather slowly under crisis, and I still don't know too much about it, but I am sure of it now."

—:—

IF YOU ARE not getting your problems solved, it just could be that you have not been praying enough. Maybe you should try asking God about it.

Or it could be that you have prayed, but only half-heartedly, in a perfunctory way. Notice the woman's phrase about how she "first began to pray really." The significant word is really.

It is possible to go through the motions and formalities of prayer every day in the year without ever really getting your mind and heart lifted up into the kind of condition that brings real help and guidance. An old man whom I met one time stated it well in his picturesque language. He said the trouble with most prayers is, "They're so thin they ain't got no suction to 'em."

I think most of us can learn much, to our enormous benefit, from the great text beginning, "Ask, and it shall be given you." It continues: "Seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." If you study these words, you will observe that they call upon us to show initiative, desire and force if we want God's help; to put forth energy and to be persistent. Ask . . . seek . . . knock. These are powerful verbs of action.

WHEN YOU want something or have a problem to solve, do you actively seek the ways and means? Do you earnestly look for the solution? Or do you just vaguely hope it will somehow come to you?

Do you systematically knock on all doors you know of that might logically take you closer to an answer — or just knock at one or two and let it go at that? Do you knock boldly, resolutely; or so timidly with such zephyr touch you could expect barely to be heard?

And do you ask with the faith and the expectancy that make it possible for help to come through to you? Do you watch for your answer? Do you listen? Do you believe you will get it?

Be bigger, stronger, more persistent in your praying. Try really asking.

We say, as somehow we hate to face one of life's most important decisions—the choice of a family Memorial. But how sensible to choose it NOW! Then this family matter will be a family decision. Everyone concerned can have his say. A Monument can be erected and the lot landscaped with unhurried care. And, financial burdens will never fall on survivors when they can least afford it. Potters Bog Down In 2nd Half But Trip St. John's, 20-8

Wheeling Central No Match For Wellsville In 48-20 Game

Thompson, Archer, Cunningham Score In Fourth Straight

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

It took another good first half to pull the Potters through to their fourth straight victory — a 20-8 decision over stubborn Bellaire St. John's Friday night at Patterson Field.

If it hadn't been for a 14-0 lead at halftime, most of the partisan crowd of 3,700 that sat in on East Liverpool's fourth striaght home game might have left downhearted.

The Irish fielded a well-rounded football team that completely outplayed the Potters in the second half and kept knocking on the touchdown door throughout the 48 minutes of football.

—:—

BOTH TEAMS entered last night's game with identical 3-1 records.

East Liverpool scored 30 of its 36 points in the first half last week against New Philly, then bogged down.

Last night the Potters added a touchdown in the first and second periods, then managed to score their final TD with only 2:55 remaining in the game.

Three different Potter players shared in the scoring. Kenny Cunningham, East Liverpool's all-state candidate at quarterback, tallied on a sneak from the 1-yard line after the Potters marched 68 yards with the opening kickoff.

End Tim Archer and Cunningham hooked up on a 39-yard razzle-dazzle play midway through the second period for the second touchdown. Archer, all alone, caught a wobbly pass from Cunningham on the Bellaire 5-yard line and waltzed into the end zone.

JOE THOMPSON, the Potters workhorse again last night, finally was rewarded for all his hard work with the final touchdown when he shot over from three yards away to make the score read 20-0. Less than three minutes remained in the game when Thompson scored.

For Bellaire St. John's, it was a frustrating night. The Irish threatened many times. A touchdown bid was stopped late in the first half on the Potters 7-yard line when Cunningham intercepted a fourth-down pass by the Irish.

In the third quarter, East Liverpool only had the ball for 8 downs.

Finally with only 29 seconds left, St. John's ended its frustration and scored when quarterback Dick Cruciotti plunged over from the 1-yard line.

A pass from Cruciotti to his No. 1 receiver, Mike DiNapoli, netted the two-point conversion.

The East Liverpool defensive line played an important part in the victory, putting up game battles when the chips were down. The line was led by Joe Smith, Bud Myers, Mike Geon and Jim Ferello.

Coach Lou Venditti rested tackle Skip Hall as much as he could. Hall suffered a fractured finger in practice earlier this week.

Passing again made the difference in the first half Friday night as Cunningham connected on his first three attempts and showed 5 out of 8 for the first 24 minutes. His overall mark was his best to date, with 7 out of 10 good for 134 yards.

THOMPSON was the leading ground gainer for the Potters, picking up 62 yards in 13 carries. Cunningham rolled out nicely and clipped off 50 yards on the ground himself, while fullback John Goodballet ripped up the middle on several occasions for 44 yards. Left halfback Allen Douglas only carried three times Friday night.

Bellaire St. John's, which ground out most of its yardage by using a fine, strong fullback in Ray Sauritch, had an edge in first downs, with 18 to East Liverpool's 13.

The Irish outrushed East Liverpool 187 to 101, but in the air the Potters had 134 to Bellaire's 55.

Sauritch was the bread and butter man for the Irish and battered the center of the Potter line time after time.

In one stretch when Bellaire first got its hands on the ball, he ran three consecutive times, picking up two first downs.

Bellaire showed some fast backs in DiNapoli and Cruciotti, who broke into the Potter secondary but usually couldn't elude the reliable Cunningham from his safety position.

On one play it seemed DiNapoli, a shifty little halfback, was away to the races, but end Mike Geon recovered and hauled him down from behind after an 18-yard gain.

—:—

CUNNINGHAM practically set up the first touchdown himself. He passed to Archer up the middle for 15 yards, then hit Thompson on a pass play that covered 22 yards and carried to the Bellaire 15.

After Goodballet got 4 yards to the 11, Cunningham ran to the 1-yard line, then a play later went over to give the Potters a 6-0 lead.

Bellaire came to drive to the Potter 20, but Geon made a key play when he threw Cruciotti for a 10-yard loss.

Larry Crook, Potter linebacker, stopped the next Bellaire drive by intercepting a pass on the Potter 41-yard line.

The Potters took over on the 41 and drove up to the Bellaire 29, where a clipping penalty set them back on the 41. Thompson got two yards to the 39.

This set the stage for the "doubleplay ball" Douglas-to-Cunningham-to-Archer. The play starts with Cunningham taking the snap from center and pitching directly straight across to Douglas. As Douglas draws the defense, he fires back to Cunningham, who is still behind the line of scrimmage. Cunningham then fires to Archer, if he is in the open. And last night the Potter end didn't have a Bellaire player around him. Cunningham's pass wasn't his best, being a little wobbly, but it got there and Archer easily stepped across the goal.

Cunningham shot around the left side, shaking off one tackler, for the two-point conversion.

IT WAS all Bellaire in the third quarter with the exception of one play when East Liverpool punted and the ball hit Bellaire guard Tom Jolly and Glenn Mays recovered for the Potters.

But the Irish held and East Liverpool was forced to punt again.

Bellaire drove to the Potter 14-yard line in the fourth quarter, but a five-yard penalty for delay of the game hurt the visitors and East Liverpool took over on its own 14 and then drove 86 yards for its final touchdown.

The Potters moved to the Bellaire 30-yard line, from where Cunningham hit Thompson for a touchdown, but the play was called back when Tim Archer threw a clip on a Bellaire defender near the goal line.

This moved the ball back to the Irish 17. Cunningham picked up two yards, then Thompson set up the score with a 12-yard scamper to the 3.

A play later Jumpin' Joe hit the right side of the Potter line and scored. A conversion pass try from Cunningham to Archer failed.

Bellaire drove from its own 38 to score its only touchdown in the last 29 seconds.

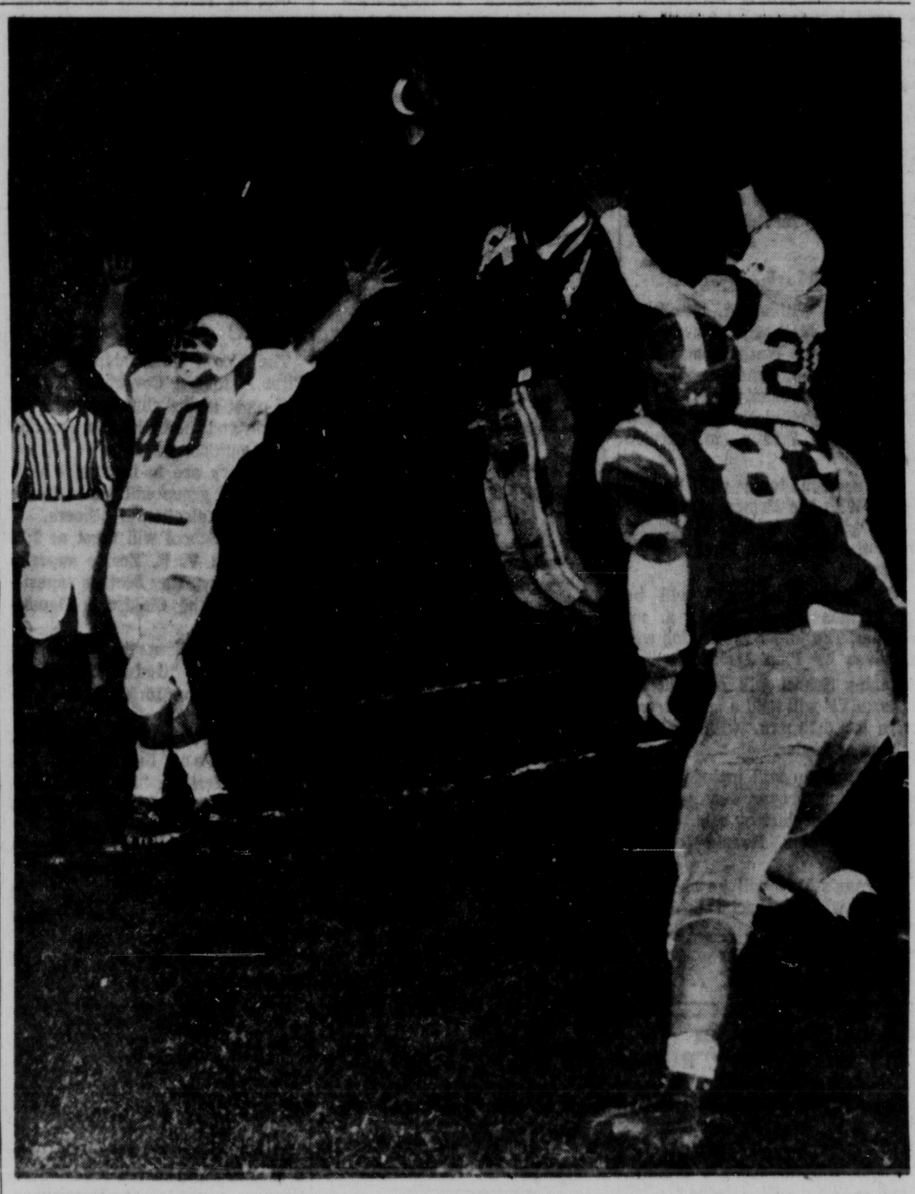
Lane And Matthews Clash In TV Fight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Boxing as junior welterweights, southpaw Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., and Len Matthews of Philadelphia meet in a nationally televised 10-round fight tonight at the Olympic Auditorium.

The contest launches a new Saturday night series of boxing shows over the ABC television network.



THIS WOULD have been a touchdown if end John Babka of Bellaire St. John's could have held the ball. Tim Archer (40) of the Potters is shown with arms outstretched in an attempt to defend against the pass, while Craig O'Neil (20) comes up in back of the receiver. No. 83 for Bellaire in black is John Zartney.

EAST LIVERPOOL'S fine quarterback, Kenny Cunningham, goes flying through the air as he is tripped up by a Bellaire defender after picking up 10 yards during action in the second quarter of Friday night's game against Bellaire St. John's at Patterson Field.

EAST PALESTINE — Halfback Jerry Bush put on a one-man scoring show here Friday night when he ripped loose for four touchdowns to spark East Palestine's 50-12 win over Lisbon.

Bush scored on runs of 40, 7 and 3 yards and intercepted a Lisbon pass and ran it back 85 yards for another touchdown.

With Bush leading the way, East Palestine jumped off to a 24-0 lead in its third straight Tri-County League victory. Coach Howard Weyers' Bulldogs added 20 more points in the second quarter and six more in the third.

Quarterback Jack Istnick turned in the most electrifying run of the night when he rambled 95 yards to the end zone with a punt.

Istnick also scored later from the 1-yard-line.

Ron Doll, a junior back, tallied the final East Palestine touchdown on a 2-yard jaunt.

Rose scored both of Lisbon's touchdowns on a 48-yard run and the other from 3 yards away.

Tiger Offense Put In High Gear For Net Of 470 Yards

By CHUCK CRONIN
Review Sports Writer

Wellsville High was forced to shift its touchdown machinery into high gear to overcome the inability to halt an unorthodox spread formation attack as it flattened Wheeling Central with a formidable show of offensive strength, 48-20, Friday night.

Coach Ken Woods' unbeaten Tigers, flashing a balanced running attack to blend with the pinpoint passing of Quarterback Roger Ours, broke open a close first-half game with an avalanche of power in the second to record their fourth triumph of the season.

APPARENTLY surprised by Wheeling Central's offensive variation of flankers, men in motion and spread formations, the Tigers, spotted the invaders an early score, but came back to build up a big margin on Ours' quarterback performance to waltz to victory.

A crowd of slightly under 2,000 at Nicholson Stadium witnessed one of the longest games in years because of excessive time outs, incompleted passes which stopped the clock and other delays for penalties.

Total playing time was two hours and 35 minutes and the referees got almost as good a workout as the players, stepping off 225 yards in penalties — 125 against the Tigers and 100 against Central.

Wellsville's strong defense, unchallenged except for one tie game this year, was put to a stiff test, but was equal to the task after finding an answer to Wheeling Central's spread formation.

But the offensive crew gets the bouquets this time as the backfield quartet of Ours, John (Long Gone) Euill, Doug Thomas and Dick Brown piled up 366 yards in rushing. Substitutes got credit for perhaps 50 of that amount in fourth quarter assignments.

—:—

OURS GAVE a near-sensational performance with flawless ball handling and deceptive running on option plays. His contributions to the victory included scoring one touchdown on a 16-yard run, scoring two conversions on runs and passing for another and throwing scoring passes of 10 and 15 yards.

The slightly-built junior completed seven of nine passes for 104 yards, though shaken up several times when defenders brought him to the turf on passing attempts.

Euill also figured prominently in Wellsville's powerful rushing attack. He scoring one touchdown on a 19-yard crack up the middle and had two long runs nullified because of blocking infractions.

The junior fullback averaged 8 yards per carry for Wellsville, rushing for 113 yards in 14 attempts. Halfback Dick Brown gained 86 yards in 11 attempts, Doug Thomas 77 in 7 carries and Ours rushed for 57 in nine attempts.

Wellsville end Bob Kiggans, 6-4, hauled in four passes and took a turn at the quarterback post when Ours was helped to the sideline in the second half. The lanky end has a near-perfect pass catching record for the season.

—:—

THE TIGERS pinned the fifth defeat in a row on Coach Jim Wheeler's Maroons, a scrappy outfit but not strong enough in line material to effectively control Wellsville's outside running.

Wheeling, however, did pull a few surprises early in the game as it marched 67 yards in 12 plays for a touchdown after the opening kickoff.

The Maroons drove from their own 33 in a series of end sweeps and short passes from an odd formation that showed both ends split wide and one halfback and fullback flanked far to the outside.

Quarterback Angelo Flores flipped a 20-yard pass to halfback John Monahan on a flare for the first Wheeling touchdown. A pass attempt for the extra points was batted down by Kiggans.

Wellsville struck just as quickly to move 68 yards in four plays, with Brown going over on a 26-yard run for the touchdown. Deceptive faking by Ours helped Brown flit through the line of scrimmage and be far into the secondary before Wheeling could diagnose the play. Ours gave Wellsville the lead with a run around right end for the extra points.

—:—

WHEELING then took tackle Alvin Jackson's booming kickoff and marched up the field for its second touchdown with 11:12 left in the second quarter. Quarterback Flores passed six yards to Monohan for the TD, and the same combination was good for the extra points and a 14-8 lead.

With 3:07 left before halftime, Wellsville again retaliated on a beautiful 16-yard touchdown run by Ours. Senior halfback Bill Hickman scored the conversion on a run and the Tigers led, 16-14.

The Tigers added another shortly before halftime after Ours tossed a short pass to halfback Doug Thomas who sped down the sidelines for 40 yards to the Wheeling Central 10. Ours passed to Jack Culp in the left corner for the tally, and then ran over the conversion to give Wellsville a 24-14 lead.

The Tiger offense clicked to perfection after halftime and produced a flurry of touchdowns to turn the game into a rout, much to the enjoyment of about 35 Curbstone Coaches who sat in a group at midfield and cheered noisly for their alma mater.

Second-half scores came on a 15-yard pass from Ours to Thomas, Euill's 19-yard crash through the middle and Thomas' 29-yard skirt of left end with 9:05 left in the final quarter.

In between, Wheeling took advantage of a fumbled punt to score one touchdown near the end of the third period. Zaleski passed to Dezio for the score, the play covering about five yards.

The Tiger line had many standouts, but again the stellar play of Center Phil Baldwin, 180-pound senior co-captain, and guard Roger Merriman, kept the defense intact at crucial moments of the first half.

Quakers' Win Streak Hits Five Straight

SALEM — Second string halfback Dave Edling made the most of chance to play here Friday night when he ripped off two touchdown runs in a 19-0 victory for the Quakers over Campbell Memorial.

Edling scored on runs 71 and 29 yards to break the game wide open in the second half. The other Quaker touchdown went to John Delfavero on a run of 7 yards in the first quarter.

Again Salem's much talked about defensive unit played another stellar role. Salem allowed Campbell only 38 yards while the Quakers gained 229 yards on the ground.

Salem pushed its winning streak to five straight games.

Potters Bog Down In 2nd Half But Trip St. John's, 20-8

Wheeling Central No Match For Wellsville In 48-20 Game

Thompson, Archer, Cunningham Score In Fourth Straight

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

It took another good first half to pull the Potters through to their fourth straight victory — a 20-8 decision over stubborn Bellaire St. John's Friday night at Patterson Field.

If it hadn't been for a 14-0 lead at halftime, most of the partisan crowd of 3,700 that sat in on East Liverpool's fourth straight home game might have left downhearted.

The Irish fielded a well-rounded football team that completely outplayed the Potters in the second half and kept knocking on the touchdown door throughout the 48 minutes of football.

—:—

BOTH TEAMS entered last night's game with identical 3-1 records.

East Liverpool scored 20 of its 28 points in the first half last week against New Philly, then bogged down.

Last night the Potters added a touchdown in the first and second periods, then managed to score their final TD with only 2:55 remaining in the game.

Three different Potter players shared in the scoring. Kenny Cunningham, East Liverpool's all-state candidate at quarterback, tallied on a sneak from the 1-yard line after the Potters marched 68 yards with the opening kickoff.

End Tim Archer and Cunningham hooked up on a 39-yard razzle-dazzle play midway through the second period for the second touchdown. Archer, all alone, caught a wobbly pass from Cunningham on the Bellaire 9-yard line and waltzed into the end zone.

JOE THOMPSON, the Potters workhorse again last night, finally was rewarded for all his hard work with the final touchdown when he shot over from three yards away to make the score read 20-0. Less than three minutes remained in the game when Thompson scored.

For Bellaire St. John's, it was a frustrating night. The Irish threatened many times. A touchdown bid was stopped late in the first half on the Potters 7-yard line when Cunningham intercepted a fourth-down pass by the Irish.

In the third quarter, East Liverpool only had the ball for 9 downs.

Finally with only 29 seconds left, St. John's ended its frustration and scored when quarterback Dick Cruciotti plunged over from the 1-yard line.

A pass from Cruciotti to his No. 1 receiver, Mike DiNapoli, netted the two-point conversion.

The East Liverpool defensive line played an important part in the victory, pulling up game battles when the chips were down. The line was led by Jim Smith, Bud Myers, Mike Geon and Jim Ferelli.

Coach Lou Vendilli rooted tackle Skip Hall as much as he could. Hall suffered a fractured finger in practice earlier this week.

Passing again made the difference in the first half Friday night as Cunningham connected on his first three attempts and showed 5 out of 8 for the first 24 minutes. His overall mark was his best to date, with 7 out of 10 good for 134 yards.

THOMPSON was the leading ground gainer for the Potters, picking up 62 yards in 13 carries. Cunningham rolled out nicely and clipped off 30 yards on the ground himself, while fullback John Goodballet ripped up the middle on several occasions for 44 yards. Left halfback Allen Douglas only carried three times Friday night.

Bellaire St. John's, which ground out most of its yardage by using a fine, strong fullback in Ray Saurlich, had an edge in first downs, with 18 to East Liverpool's 13.

The Irish outrushed East Liverpool 187 to 101, but in the air the Potters had 134 to Bellaire's 55.

Saurlich was the bread and butter man for the Irish and battered the center of the Potter line time after time.

In one stretch when Bellaire first got its hands on the ball, he ran three consecutive times, picking up two first downs.

Bellaire showed some fast backs in DiNapoli and Cruciotti, who broke into the Potter secondary but usually couldn't elude the reliable Cunningham from his safety position.

On one play it seemed DiNapoli, a shifty little halfback, was away to the races, but end Mike Geon recovered and hauled him down from behind after an 18-yard gain.

—:—

CUNNINGHAM practically set up the first touchdown himself. He passed to Archer up the middle for 15 yards, then hit Thompson on a pass play that covered 22 yards and carried to the Bellaire 15.

After Goodballet got 4 yards to the 11, Cunningham ran to the 1-yard line, then a play later went over to give the Potters a 6-0 lead.

Bellaire came to drive to the Potter 20, but Geon made a key play when he threw Cruciotti for a 10-yard loss.

Larry Crook, Potter linebacker, stopped the next Bellaire drive by intercepting a pass on the Potter 41-yard line.

The Potters took over on the 41 and drove up to the Bellaire 29, where a clipping penalty set them back on the 41. Thompson got two yards to the 39.

This set the stage for the "double-play ball" Douglas-to-Cunningham-to-Archer. The play starts with Cunningham taking the snap from center and pitching directly straight across to Douglas. As Douglas draws the defense, he fires back to Cunningham, who is still behind the line of scrimmage. Cunningham then fires to Archer, if he is in the open. And last night the Potter end didn't have a Bellaire player around him. Cunningham's pass wasn't his best, being a little wobbly, but it got there and Archer easily stepped across the goal.

Cunningham shot around the left side, shaking off one tackler, for the two-point conversion.

IT WAS all Bellaire in the third quarter with the exception of one play when East Liverpool punted and the ball hit Bellaire guard Tom Jolly and Glenn Mays recovered for the Potters.

But the Irish held and East Liverpool was forced to punt again.

Bellaire drove to the Potter 16-yard line in the fourth quarter, but a five-yard penalty for delay of the game hurt the visitors and East Liverpool took over on its own 14 and then drove 86 yards for its final touchdown.

The Potters moved to the Bellaire 30-yard line, from where Cunningham hit Thompson for a touchdown, but the play was called back when Tim Archer threw a clip on a Bellaire defender near the goal line.

This moved the ball back to the Irish 17. Cunningham picked up two yards, then Thompson set up the score with a 12-yard scamper to the 3.

A play later Jumpin' Joe hit the right side of the Potter line and scored. A conversion pass try from Cunningham to Archer failed.

Bellaire drove from its own 28 to score its only touchdown in the last 29 seconds.

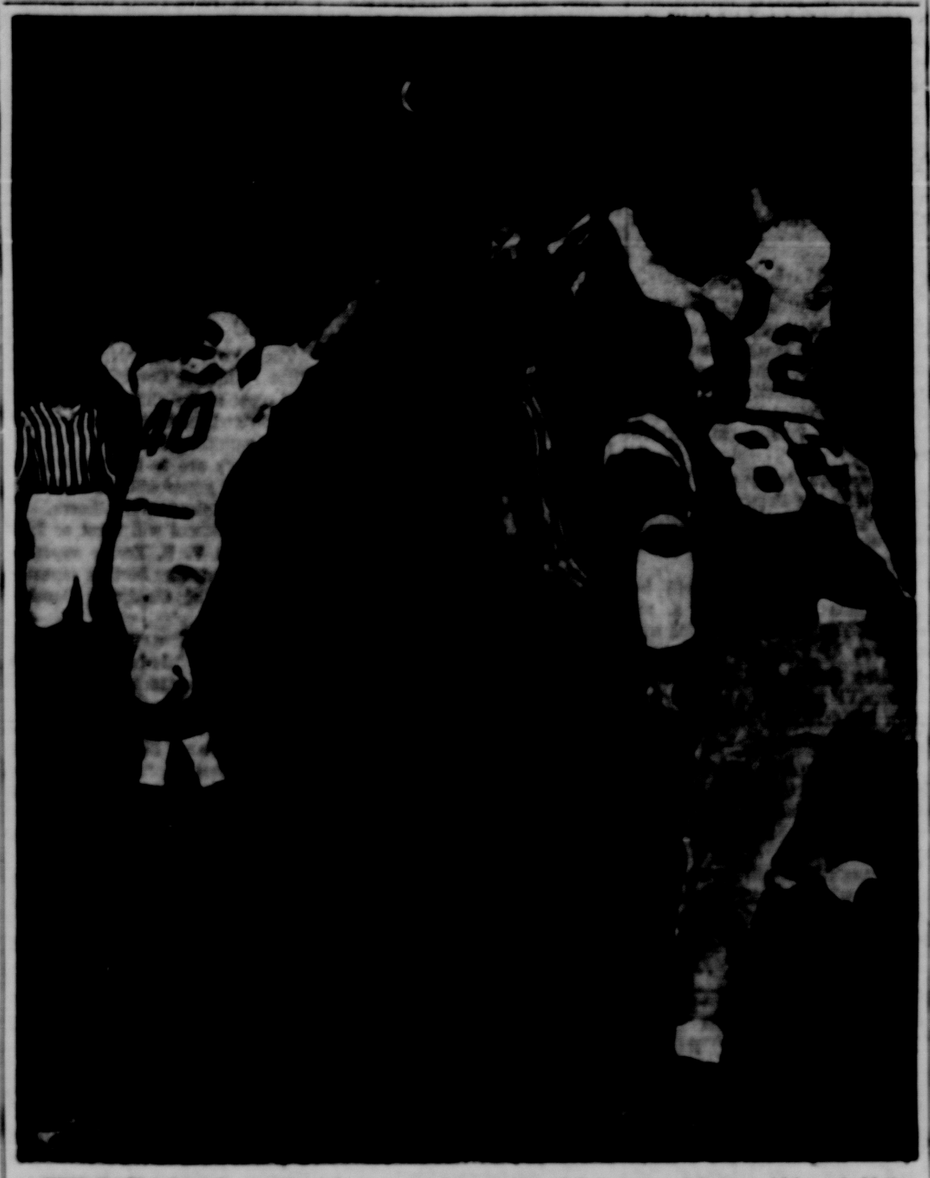
Lane And Matthews Clash In TV Fight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Boxing as junior welterweights, southpaw Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., and Len Matthews of Philadelphia meet in a nationally televised 10-round fight tonight at the Olympic Auditorium.

The contest launches a new Saturday night series of boxing shows over the ABC television network.



THIS WOULD have been a touchdown if end John Bebko of Bellaire St. John's could have held the ball. Tim Archer (60) of the Potters is shown with arms outstretched in an attempt to defend against the pass, while Craig O'Neil (20) comes up in back of the receiver. No. 82 for Bellaire in black is John Zartney.

EAST LIVERPOOL'S fine quarterback, Kenny Cunningham, goes flying through the air as he is tripped up by a Bellaire defender after picking up 10 yards during action in the second quarter of Friday night's game against Bellaire St. John's at Patterson Field.

Tiger Offense Put In High Gear For Net Of 470 Yards

By CHUCK CRONIN
Review Sports Writer

Wellsville High was forced to shift its touchdown machinery into high gear to overcome the inability to halt an unorthodox spread formation attack as it flattened Wheeling Central with a formidable show of offensive strength, 48-20, Friday night.

Coach Ken Woods' unbeaten Tigers, flashing a balanced running attack to blend with the pinpoint passing of Quarterback Roger Ours, broke open a close first-half game with an avalanche of power in the second to record their fourth triumph of the season.

APPARENTLY surprised by Wheeling Central's offensive variation of flankers, men in motion and spread formations, the Tigers spotted the invaders an early score, but came back to build up a big margin on Ours' quarterback performance to waltz to victory.

A crowd of slightly under 2,000 at Nicholson Stadium witnessed one of the longest games in years because of excessive time outs, incompleted passes which stopped the clock and other delays for penalties.

Total playing time was two hours and 25 minutes and the referees got almost as good a workout as the players, stepping off 225 yards in penalties — 125 against the Tigers and 100 against Central.

Wellsville's strong defense, unchallenged except for one tie game this year, was put to a stiff test, but was equal to the task after finding an answer to Wheeling Central's spread formation.

But the offensive crew gets the bouquets this time as the backfield quartet of Ours, John (Long Gone) Bull, Doug Thomas and Dick Brown piled up 306 yards in rushing. Substitutes got credit for perhaps 30 of that amount in fourth quarter assignments.

OURS GAVE a near-sensational performance with flawless ball handling and deceptive running on option plays. His contributions to the victory included scoring one touchdown on a 16-yard run, scoring two conversions on runs and passing for another and throwing scoring passes of 30 and 15 yards.

The slightly-built junior completed seven of nine passes for 134 yards, though shaken up several times when defenders brought him to the turf on passing attempts.

Bull also figured prominently in Wellsville's powerful rushing attack. He scoring one touchdown on a 19-yard crack up the middle and had two long runs nullified because of blocking infractions.

The junior fullback averaged 6 yards per carry for Wellsville, rushing for 113 yards in 16 attempts. Halfback Dick Brown gained 85 yards in 11 attempts. Doug Thomas 77 in 7 carries and Ours rushed for 37 in nine attempts.

Wellsville end Bob Kiggans, 6-4, hauled in four passes and took a turn at the quarterback post when Ours was helped to the sideline in the second half. The lanky end has a near-perfect pass catching record for the season.

—:—

THE TIGERS pinned the fifth defeat in a row on Coach Jim Wheeler's Marooms, a scrappy outfit but not strong enough in line material to effectively control Wellsville's outside running.

Wheeling, however, did pull a few surprises early in the game as it marched 67 yards in 12 plays for a touchdown after the opening kickoff.

The Marooms drove from their own 33 in a series of end sweeps and short passes from an old formation that showed both ends split wide and one halfback and fullback flanked far to the outside.

Quarterback Angelo Flores flipped a 30-yard pass to halfback John Monahan on a flare for the first Wheeling touchdown. A pass attempt for the extra points was batted down by Kiggans.

Wellsville struck just as quickly to move 68 yards in four plays, with Brown going over on a 26-yard run for the touchdown. Deceptive faking by Ours helped Brown flit through the line of scrimmage and be far into the secondary before Wheeling could diagnose the play. Ours gave Wellsville the lead with a run around right end for the extra points.

—:—

WHEELING then took tackle Alvin Jackson's booming kickoff and marched up the field for its second touchdown with 11:12 left in the second quarter. Quarterback Flores passed six yards to Monohan for the TD, and the same combination was good for the extra points and a 14-8 lead.

With 3:07 left before halftime, Wellsville again retaliated on a beautiful 16-yard touchdown run by Ours. Senior halfback Bill Hickman scored the conversion on a run and the Tigers led, 16-14.

The Tigers added another shortly before halftime after Ours tossed a short pass to halfback Doug Thomas who sped down the sidelines for 60 yards to the Wheeling Central 10. Ours passed to Jack Culp in the left corner for the tally, and then ran over the conversion to give Wellsville a 24-14 lead.

The Tiger offense clicked to perfection after halftime and produced a flurry of touchdowns to turn the game into a rout, much to the enjoyment of about 25 Curbstone Coaches who sat in a group at midfield and cheered noisily for their alma mater.

Second-half scores came on a 15-yard pass from Ours to Thomas, Bull's 19-yard crash through the middle and Thomas' 28-yard skirt of left end with 9:06 left in the final quarter.

In between, Wheeling took advantage of a fumbled punt to score one touchdown near the end of the third period. Zaleski passed to Dezio for the score, the play covering about five yards.

The Tiger line had many standouts, but again the stellar play of Center Phil Baldwin, 186-pound senior co-captain, and guard Roger Merriman, kept the defense intact at crucial moments of the first half.

South Side Turns Back Newell, 19-13, For First Victory

Schmidt Scores Twice, Throws For One Tally

Quarterback Chuck Schmidt did all but sell tickets in leading his South Side squad to its first victory of the 1960 campaign Friday night at Hookstown.

The junior star scored two touchdowns and passed for another to take part in all the Rams' scoring.

He ran 45 and 10 yards for touchdowns in the first period and then combined with Dan Parsons to become the hero of the game with a 35-yard pass play that netted the winning touchdown midway in the fourth quarter.

While South Side picked up its first victory in five starts, Newell dropped its fifth straight.

Ron Noland, Neweil's flashy back, sped 13 yards for the Vikings' first touchdown in the first period and then scored the second on a 25-yard jaunt.

On the first touchdown, South Side's star tackle, Scott Walker, blocked a try for an attempted placement. Noland's second touchdown brought Newell within one point 13-12 then Mickey Staley hit end Bob Barnett for the extra point to provide a 13-13 tie at halftime.

In the third period, Newell marched to the South Side goal line but a Viking fumble in the end zone was recovered by Duane Hall of South Side for a touchback and the ball was placed on the Rams' 20-yard line.

South Side picked up 213 yards on the ground and 112 yards were picked up by Schmidt. Newell showed 125 yards gain rushing.

Coach Dave Nichol's Rams meet Beaver Local next Saturday at Williamsport.

Leetonia Breaks Scoring Barrier But Drops Fourth

MINERVA—Leetonia broke into the scoring column for the first time this season but still suffered its fourth straight setback. Sebring handed the Bears a 28-13 loss here Friday night.

Leetonia led 7-0 at the end of the first quarter and produced its first points of the season.

Bob Gullett bolted in from the 3-yard line and Wilkenson's placement was good for a 7-0 lead.

Minerva struck back in the second quarter when Don Miller plunged over the one-yard-line and Bill Bingham added the two-point conversion.

Leetonia bounced back again when Eric Painter took an 11-yard pass from Paul Conrad and Leetonia led at halftime 13-8.

The roof fell in during the second half. Jim Tschabold took a 7-yard pass from Gary Nigro for a TD then scored minutes later on a 2-yard plunge by Miller again.

NBA Franchises Given To Chicago And Pittsburgh

NEW YORK (AP) — Two new clubs—stocked largely from the present eight teams in the league—will make their debut when the National Basketball Association begins operations in the 1961-62 season.

The NBA Board of Governors Friday granted franchises to Chicago and Pittsburgh. The eight present teams in the league will be permitted to keep seven of their players. The remaining players will be subject to draft by the new clubs.

A league spokesman also said some players on the new teams might come out of the college ranks.

The league voted to boost the players on each squad. The teams will be permitted to carry 12 players until Dec. 12 instead of 10. After Dec. 12, the clubs will be permitted to carry 11 players but will be able to dress only 10.

Yanks 9-5 Favorites Now To Win Series

70,000 Wait Third Battle In New York

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees ruled as 9 to 5 favorites today to capture the World Series. They and the Pittsburgh Pirates are tied 1-1, but several Pirates leave suffered injuries.

With fair weather predicted, a crowd of some 70,000 was assured for this third game which featured a southpaw battle between Whitey Ford, 32-year-old Yankee veteran, and Vinegar Bend Mizell, 30-year-old Pittsburgh Pirate pickup from the St. Louis Cardinals.

Ford brings only a fair 12-9 season record, his poorest mark in years, into the game but not to be discounted is his World Series experience which comprises 12 starts, including five victories and four defeats. In contrast, Mizell, who won 13 of his 18 games after the Pirates got him in a trade with St. Louis, had never seen the inside of Yankee Stadium until Friday's workout.

The Pirates figure to miss injured Bob Skinner's bat dearly although he didn't figure to play today because of the left-handed opposition. But Bob most certainly would have played Sunday and Monday, in the fourth and fifth games, were he healthy.

Skinner jammed his left thumb while sliding into third in the opening game last Wednesday and was not in uniform the next day.

Gino Cimoli, who subbed for him Thursday, is the left fielder against and he may be in there every game hereafter. The right-handed hitting Cimoli, while a better defensive outfielder, does not rate with Skinner at the plate. Skinner hit 15 homers this past season to none for Gino.

With Ford pitching, Dick Stuart replaced Rocky Nelson at first and Hal Smith went behind the plate in place of Smoky Burgess. The rest of the Pirate lineup was the same, including Dick Groat although the shortstop still complained of some pain, especially when fielding a ball to his left. Third baseman Don Hoak, who is playing despite a groin injury, reported he was feeling much better.

Casey Stengel, Yankee manager came up with his third lineup in three games. He said he would start Bob Cerv in left field and bat him second, behind leadoff man Gil McDougald. Tony Kubek, who rapped three hits in each of the first two games, was to bat seventh.

Elston Howard was slated to catch his second straight game and for the second time in the 10 World Series that Stengel has managed the club, Yogi Berra was scheduled to be on the bench.

Thursday's one-sided contest notwithstanding, Stengel lost none of his respect for the Pirates.

"They're pretty good hitters and they've still got that fine pitching and they don't scare easily," he said. "And from all the reports we have they bounce back pretty good. It's still anybody's series."

Danny Murtaugh, the quiet-spoken Pittsburgh manager, was far from down hearted.

"This isn't a club that will drop dead over one defeat," he said. 'We don't choke up. All season long what we did or didn't do didn't affect us the next day."

Colts, Giants Picked Again

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Colts and New York Giants, off faster than when they won second straight conference titles last year, are favored to score their third victories Sunday and remain unbeaten in the National Football League.

The Cleveland Browns, also 2-0 and the only other undefeated pro team, are idle, giving the Giants a chance to take a clear-cut lead in the NFL's Eastern section with a victory over the Steelers 1-1 at Pittsburgh. The Giants are favored by a point. Baltimore, already a game ahead of the field in the Western sector, is favored by five points over the Packers (1-1) at Green Bay.

In the American Football League, where all eight teams have been beaten at least once, the feature game is at Houston Sunday where the Oilers (2-1) are 4-point underdogs to the New York Titans. The New York team leads the eastern section with a 3-1 record, while Houston is second with 2-1.

Tonight the Boston Patriots (1-2), third in the East, are at the Los Angeles Chargers (2-2), tied for second in the West with the Dallas Texans (2-2). The Chargers are six-point favorites.

Buffalo, 1-3 and last in the East, and Denver, leading the West with 3-1, are idle.

The Chicago Bears and San Francisco 49ers, grouped at 1-1 with the Packers behind the Colts in the NFL's Western section, are favored to keep pace with the defending champions. It's the 49ers by 4 over the Lions (0-1) at Detroit, and the Bears by 7 over the visiting Los Angeles Rams (0-2), who have lost 10 straight.

South Side Turns Back Newell, 19-13, For First Victory

Schmidt Scores Twice, Throws For One Tally

Quarterback Chuck Schmidt did all but sell tickets in leading his South Side squad to its first victory of the 1960 campaign Friday night at Hookstown.

The junior star scored two touchdowns and passed for another to take part in all the Rams' scoring.

He ran 45 and 10 yards for touchdowns in the first period and then combined with Dan Parsons to become the hero of the game with a 35-yard pass play that netted the winning touchdown midway in the fourth quarter.

While South Side picked up its first victory in five starts, Newell dropped its fifth straight.

Ron Noland, Newell's flashy back, sped 13 yards for the Vikings' first touchdown in the first period and then scored the second on a 25-yard jaunt.

On the first touchdown, South Side's star tackle, Scott Walker, blocked a try for an attempted placement. Noland's second touchdown brought Newell within one point 13-12 then Mickey Staley hit end Bob Barnett for the extra point to provide a 13-13 tie at halftime.

In the third period, Newell marched to the South Side goal line but a Viking fumble in the end zone was recovered by Duane Hall of South Side for a touchback and the ball was placed on the Rams' 20-yard line.

South Side picked up 213 yards on the ground and 112 yards were picked up by Schmidt. Newell showed 125 yards gain rushing.

Coach Dave Nichol's Rams meet Beaver Local next Saturday at Williamsport.

Leetonia Breaks Scoring Barrier But Drops Fourth

MINERVA—Leetonia broke into the scoring column for the first time this season but still suffered its fourth straight setback. Sebring handed the Bears a 28-13 loss here Friday night.

Leetonia led 7-0 at the end of the first quarter and produced its first points of the season.

Bob Gullett bolted in from the 3-yard line and Wilkonson's placement was good for a 7-0 lead.

Minerva struck back in the second quarter when Don Miller plunged over the one-yard-line and Bill Bingham added the two-point conversion.

Leetonia bounced back again when Eric Painter took an 11-yard pass from Paul Conrad and Leetonia led at halftime 13-8.

The roof fell in during the second half. Jim Tschabold took a 7-yard pass from Gary Nigro for a TD then scored minutes later on a 2-yard plunge by Miller again.

NBA Franchises Given To Chicago And Pittsburgh

NEW YORK (AP) — Two new clubs—stocked largely from the present eight teams in the league—will make their debut when the National Basketball Association begins operations in the 1961-62 season.

The NBA Board of Governors Friday granted franchises to Chicago and Pittsburgh. The eight present teams in the league will be permitted to keep seven of their players. The remaining players will be subject to draft by the new clubs.

A league spokesman also said some players on the new teams might come out of the college ranks.

The league voted to boost the players on each squad. The teams will be permitted to carry 12 players until Dec. 12 instead of 10. After Dec. 12, the clubs will be permitted to carry 11 players but will be able to dress only 10.

Yanks 9-5 Favorites Now To Win Series

70,000 Wait Third Battle In New York

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees ruled as 9 to 5 favorites today to capture the World Series. They and the Pittsburgh Pirates are tied 1-1, but several Pirates leave suffered injuries.

With fair weather predicted, a crowd of some 70,000 was assured for this third game which featured a southpaw battle between Whitey Ford, 32-year-old Yankee veteran, and Vinegar Bend Mizell, 30-year-old Pittsburgh Pirate pickup from the St. Louis Cardinals.

Ford brings only a fair 12-9 season record, his poorest mark in years, into the game but not to be discounted is his World Series experience which comprises 12 starts, including five victories and four defeats. In contrast, Mizell, who won 13 of his 18 games after the Pirates got him in a trade with St. Louis, had never seen the inside of Yankee Stadium until Friday's workout.

The Pirates figure to miss injured Bob Skinner's bat dearly although he didn't figure to play today because of the left-handed opposition. But Bob most certainly would have played Sunday and Monday, in the fourth and fifth games, were he healthy.

Skinner jammed his left thumb while sliding into third in the opening game last Wednesday and was not in uniform the next day.

Gino Cimoli, who subbed for him Thursday, is the left fielder against and he may be in there every game hereafter. The right-handed hitting Cimoli, while a better defensive outfielder, does not rate with Skinner at the plate. Skinner hit 15 homers this past season to none for Gino.

With Ford pitching, Dick Stuart replaced Rocky Nelson at first and Hal Smith went behind the plate in place of Smoky Burgess. The rest of the Pirate lineup was the same, including Dick Groat although the shortstop still complained of some pain, especially when fielding a ball to his left. Third baseman Don Hoak, who is playing despite a groin injury, reported he was feeling much better.

Casey Stengel, Yankee manager came up with his third lineup in three games. He said he would start Bob Cerv in left field and bat him second, behind leadoff man Gil McDougald. Tony Kubek, who rapped three hits in each of the first two games, was to bat seventh.

Elston Howard was slated to catch his second straight game and for the second time in the 10 World Series that Stengel has managed the club, Yogi Berra was scheduled to be on the bench.

Thursday's one-sided contest notwithstanding, Stengel lost none of his respect for the Pirates.

"They're pretty good hitters and they've still got that fine pitching and they don't scare easily," he said. "And from all the reports we have they bounce back pretty good. It's still anybody's series."

Danny Murtaugh, the quiet-spoken Pittsburgh manager, was far from down hearted.

"This isn't a club that will drop dead over one defeat," he said. "We don't choke up. All season long what we did or didn't do didn't affect us the next day."

By The Associated Press

Colts, Giants Picked Again

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Colts and New York Giants, off faster than when they won second straight conference titles last year, are favored to score their third victories Sunday and remain unbeaten in the National Football League.

The Cleveland Browns, also 2-0 and the only other undefeated pro team, are idle, giving the Giants a chance to take a clear-cut lead in the NFL's Eastern section with a victory over the Steelers 1-1 at Pittsburgh. The Giants are favored by a point. Baltimore, already a game ahead of the field in the Western sector, is favored by five points over the Packers (1-1) at Green Bay.

In the American Football League, where all eight teams have been beaten at least once, the feature game is at Houston Sunday where the Oilers (2-1) are 4-point underdogs to the New York Titans. The New York team leads the eastern section with a 3-1 record, while Houston is second with 2-1.

Tonight the Boston Patriots (1-2), third in the East, are at the Los Angeles Chargers (2-2), tied for second in the West with the Dallas Texans (2-2). The Chargers are six-point favorites.

Buffalo, 1-3 and last in the East, and Denver, leading the West with 3-1, are idle.

The Chicago Bears and San Francisco 49ers, grouped at 1-1 with the Packers behind the Colts in the NFL's Western section, are favored to keep pace with the defending champions. It's the 49ers by 4 over the Lions (0-1) at Detroit, and the Bears by 7 over the visiting Los Angeles Rams (0-2), who have lost 10 straight.

Court Income Drops $2,193

Municipal Court revenue totaled $3,099 in September, a drop of $2,193 from the $5,292 collected in August, it was shown today in the monthly report of Clerk Wilbur J. Harmon.

The court turned over $2,549 to the city treasury from last month's revenue, off $2,245 from the $4,794 the city received out of August income.

The city's share included $633 in costs from civil cases, $1,786 from fines, costs and forfeits in criminal cases and $130 from fines and forfeits in State Highway Patrol arrests. There was a sharp drop in criminal receipts from August to September. The source produced $4,259 in August, contrasted with $1,786 last month, a difference of $2,463.

In addition to the amount paid the city last month, the court turned over $130 to the state treasury, also from Highway Patrol cases; $308 to the county treasurer from state cases and $111 to the Law Library Association.

The total amount handled by the court hit $6,155 last month, off $5,437 from the $11,592 shown in August. The civil branch handled $2,826 last month, while the criminal branch handled $3,329. In August, the civil branch handled $5,023 and the criminal branch $6,569.

A breakdown of cases showed: 77 civil cases filed last month, 70 disposed of and 208 left pending; 46 city criminal cases filed, 44 disposed of and 53 left pending, and 53 state criminal cases filed, 40 disposed of and 92 pending.

Nixon Returns To Midwest In Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pledged to a "give 'em hell" battle and pleased with the second round of the televised presidential debate, Vice President Richard M. Nixon carries his campaign back to the Midwest today.

Nixon said after Friday night's encounter with John F. Kennedy that it provided "more clash" and moved a little faster than the first one from Chicago on Sept. 26. He called it a "good sharp debate—not dull."

"We'll know on Nov. 8 how it came out, but I thought it was a good exchange," Nixon added.

After Friday night's meeting, the Republican presidential candidate told several hundred staff workers at a pep rally: "It's not going to be like 1948. We're going to really give 'em hell from now on."

His give 'em hell reference was to the style of Harry S. Truman's campaign 12 years ago which produced a surprise victory over Thomas E. Dewey.

Nixon said that on the advice of Dewey he would conduct a tough, fighting campaign from here on. But he said it was more important to provide "mature, idealistic leadership" than simply to call your opponent names.

Nixon's first scheduled speech today was at LaCrosse, Wis. He was to campaign later in the day at Rochester, Minn., and Milwaukee. Tonight he will fly to Billings, Mont., and remain there until Monday morning.

Next week, Nixon's fourth of active campaigning after being hospitalized for a knee injury, takes him to the West Coast and back.

Sen. Kennedy Lauds Party's Tobacco Plan

By JOE HALL

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy pointed with pride today to the tobacco price support program as a model of what a Democratic program could do for the nation's farmers.

The Democratic presidential nominee said the 90-per keftuprice support program for tobacco was put through by his party and has been protected by Democrats despite efforts of Republicans to junk it.

Kennedy said he knew that his opponent, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, had said recently in Kentucky he also favored the tobacco program.

"I think that's fine," the senator commented. "But I didn't hear Mr. Nixon when the tobacco program was vetoed in 1959."

The senator flew to Lexington, Ky., Friday night for a day of campaigning in this important tobacco growing state after his second radio-television debate with Nixon.

He wasted little time in post mortem on the debate and his press secretary said the Democratic nominee was pleased with the way it went.

But Kennedy was understood to feel that the result was about a draw, and that the vice president was more effective than in the first encounter Sept. 26.

The estimate of the Kennedy camp was that Nixon took a harder line in Friday night's encounter in response to pleas of Republicans that he get tough with his Democratic foe.

The Massachusetts senator felt that he made a fine start in his first invasion of Kentucky Wednesday night when he drew a large and enthusiastic crowd at Louisville.

He came back here today in an effort to sew up the Blue Grass State's 10 electoral votes.

Court Income Drops $2,193

Municipal Court revenue totaled $3,099 in September, a drop of $2,193 from the $5,292 collected in August, it was shown today in the monthly report of Clerk Wilbur J. Harmon.

The court turned over $2,549 to the city treasury from last month's revenue, off $2,245 from the $4,794 the city received out of August income.

The city's share included $633 in costs from civil cases, $1,786 from fines, costs and forfeits in criminal cases and $130 from fines and forfeits in State Highway Patrol arrests. There was a sharp drop in criminal receipts from August to September. The source produced $4,259 in August, contrasted with $1,786 last month, a difference of $2,463.

In addition to the amount paid the city last month, the court turned over $130 to the state treasury, also from Highway Patrol cases; $308 to the county treasurer from state cases and $111 to the Law Library Association.

The total amount handled by the court hit $6,155 last month, off $5,437 from the $11,592 shown in August. The civil branch handled $2,826 last month, while the criminal branch handled $3,329. In August, the civil branch handled $5,023 and the criminal branch $6,569.

A breakdown of cases showed: 77 civil cases filed last month, 70 disposed of and 208 left pending; 46 city criminal cases filed, 44 disposed of and 53 left pending, and 53 state criminal cases filed, 40 disposed of and 92 pending.

Nixon Returns To Midwest In Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pledged to a "give 'em hell" battle and pleased with the second round of the televised presidential debate, Vice President Richard M. Nixon carries his campaign back to the Midwest today.

Nixon said after Friday night's encounter with John F. Kennedy that it provided "more clash" and moved a little faster than the first one from Chicago on Sept. 26. He called it a "good sharp debate—not dull."

"We'll know on Nov. 8 how it came out, but I thought it was a good exchange," Nixon added.

After Friday night's meeting, the Republican presidential candidate told several hundred staff workers at a pep rally: "It's not going to be like 1948. We're going to really give 'em hell from now on."

His give 'em hell reference was to the style of Harry S. Truman's campaign 12 years ago which produced a surprise victory over Thomas E. Dewey.

Nixon said that on the advice of Dewey he would conduct a tough, fighting campaign from here on. But he said it was more important to provide "mature, idealistic leadership" than simply to call your opponent names.

Nixon's first scheduled speech today was at LaCrosse, Wis. He was to campaign later in the day at Rochester, Minn., and Milwaukee. Tonight he will fly to Billings, Mont., and remain there until Monday morning.

Next week, Nixon's fourth of active campaigning after being hospitalized for a knee injury, takes him to the West Coast and back.

Sen. Kennedy Lauds Party's Tobacco Plan

By JOE HALL

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP)— Sen. John F. Kennedy pointed with pride today to the tobacco price support program as a model of what a Democratic program could do for the nation's farmers.

The Democratic presidential nominee said the 90-per keftuprice support program for tobacco was put through by his party and has been protected by Democrats despite efforts of Republicans to junk it.

Kennedy said he knew that his opponent, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, had said recently in Kentucky he also favored the tobacco program.

"I think that's fine," the senator commented. "But I didn't hear Mr. Nixon when the tobacco program was vetoed in 1959."

The senator flew to Lexington, Ky., Friday night for a day of campaigning in this important tobacco growing state after his second radio-television debate with Nixon.

He wasted little time in post mortem on the debate and his press secretary said the Democratic nominee was pleased with the way it went.

But Kennedy was understood to feel that the result was about a draw, and that the vice president was more effective than in the first encounter Sept. 26.

The estimate of the Kennedy camp was that Nixon took a harder line in Friday night's encounter in response to pleas of Republicans that he get tough with his Democratic foe.

The Massachusetts senator felt that he made a fine start in his first invasion of Kentucky Wednesday night when he drew a large and enthusiastic crowd at Louisville.

He came back here today in an effort to sew up the Blue Grass State's 10 electoral votes.

She said only five have been donated in the past month but she and her daughter, Miss Bonnie Lou Seaman, have time to complete 200 or more. She said the need may be greater this Christmas, because of industrial cutbacks and resultant unemployment, and urged mothers to search their homes for dolls discarded by their children.

David Hargraves, '11, of 1023 Pennsylvania Ave., James Hocking, 11, of 530 Elizabeth St., and Jonathan Ramsey, 10½, of 511 Maryland Ave. will be presented the Parvuli Dei awards by Fr. Lambert Andrews, pastor, at the 8 a.m. Mass in conjunction with the boys' monthly Communion. They are members of Pack 60.

Hargraves, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hargraves, entered the Cub Scouts in 1959, and has a lion badge with a gold and three silver arrows and is Webelos rank.

Hocking, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hocking, also in the cubs since 1959, has a lion badge with a gold and four silver arrows, a one-year attendance pin and is of Webelos rank.

Ramsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Ramsey, has been in the cubs since 1958, has a wolf badge with a gold and four silver arrows, bear badge with gold and five silver arrows, and lion badge with a gold and four silver arrows. He is working on the Webelos rank, and has a one-year service and one-year attendance pin.

All three have the roundup patch for 1959, jubilee patch and 50th anniversary award. All are members of the church.

To achieve the award, the youths had to attain the lion rank, complete 12 requirements set up by the national organization and list them in a logbook which is reviewed by his Catholic religious officer.

Judge To Hear Suits In Carey Co. Strike

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Judge P. P. Boli has agreed to hear suits next Monday in common pleas court from both sides in the Philip Carey Co. strike of United Auto Workers Union employes.

The company in its suit asked to have picketing limited and asserted strikers violated an earlier court order. The union also asked for a restrainer and said the company was inciting strikes.

Police arrested three persons Friday on assault charges and one on a charge of careless driving in earlier strike-based incidents. The walkout, over a contract, started Sept. 6.

Hollywood Musician To Give Program At First Nazarene

In the classical field he appeared with the New York Philharmonic and Toscanini and the NBC Symphony.

His professional career was climaxed when the Metropolitan Opera offered him a five-year contract as a Wagnerian basso. It was at that time that he decided to launch his sacred ministry.

The largest budget in the history of the church — $7,875, will be presented to the congregation Sunday morning for study.

The budget provides for a well-balanced ratio of support for local work and world missions, Ernest Baxter, chairman of the budget preparation committee, said.

No formal action on the budget is expected tomorrow as it will be presented to the congregation for adoption Oct. 16.

Oct. 30 has been set as Commitment Day, when it is expected that every member of the church and Sunday School will bring his personal stewardship commitment card.

The second in a series of five stewardship sermons will be presented by the minister at the 10:45 a. m. worship tomorrow. His topic will be "The Christian Use of Life."

Doll Appeal Renewed For Christmas Project

Mrs. Margaret Griffith of Sunnyside Court, R.D. 2, renewed an appeal today for discarded dolls to be repaired and given new dresses for distribution to needy children at Christmas.

She said only five have been donated in the past month but she and her daughter, Miss Bonnie Lou Seaman, have time to complete 200 or more. She said the need may be greater this Christmas, because of industrial cutbacks and resultant unemployment, and urged mothers to search their homes for dolls discarded by their children.

The Salvation Army is serving as the collection point. The citadel phone is FU. 5-1329 and Mrs. Griffith may be reached at FU. 6-6718.

Lions Hear Betts

School Problems Of Decade Aired

Problems facing Ohio schools in the next decade were outlined by Supt. Ralph W. Betts in discussing the second State House Conference on Education to be held Jan. 26 in Columbus at the meeting of the Lions Club Friday noon at the Travelers Hotel.

Using a film strip to show the statistics, Betts said an additional million children will be enrolled in the state's schools by 1970.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS had an enrollment of 1.2 million in 1950 and added 700,000 students in the last 10 years, he pointed out.

The additional enrollment will create a need for 36,000 additional classrooms and does not include the replacement of any antequated school buildings.

It also will result in the need for 116,000 teachers who must be found by 1970, the superintendent continued, explaining the total includes new teachers and replacements for those who will leave the profession.

College enrollments also are expected to more than double, jumping to 215,000 fulltime students.

REORGANIZATION still is a problem in many school districts, but progress is being shown. The number of districts has been decreased from more than 1,700 to less than 900, Betts said.

However, there are 420 districts with fewer than 240 high school pupils, the minimum allowed by the State Department of Education. In addition, 133 districts have no high school.

"It may surprise you to know that some high schools have 50 or less pupils. Educators say you cannot operate a complete high school program economically with less than 500 pupils," the superintendent said.

No estimate on how much it will cost to educate the additional pupils has been made, Betts said. However, the state spent $210 million in 1949 for 1.2 million pupils and $550 million in 1949 to educate 1.8 million students.

If the spending continues at the present rate per pupil, the state will have to dig up $900 million by 1970. But if operating costs continue to rise, the bill could come to $1.7 billion, he said.

THE COST DOES not include any funds for school construction, 95 per cent of which is financed by local bond issues.

Property taxes are the only local source of revenue for schools, along with funds from the state foundation program which provides an average of $6,868 per classroom unit. In East Liverpool, there is slightly less than $9,000 in assessed valuation behind each pupil, he said.

Betts pointed out Ohio ranks 7th among the top 10 states in student population, spending $366 per pupil.

The superintendent reminded two local conferences will be held to precede the statewide meeting.

The first meeting, open to any resident of the school district, will be held Oct. 18 at the high school auditorium and the theme will be "What Do We Want From Our Schools?"

—:—

THE SECOND meeting in mid-November will discuss "How Do We Get What We Want from Our Schools?"

Betts was introduced by Leo C. Lawrence, program chairman. Howard E. Tice, president, presided.

Charles Herman, co-chairman of the club's annual light bulb sale, appealed to members to turn out Monday night in attempt to conclude the campaign. Proceeds go to charitable work.

Herman said only 379 packages of bulbs have been sold so far.

—:—

FOUR MEMBERS of the Business and Professional Women's Club, who "arrested and tried" Herman Tuesday when they took over the reigns of municipal government, were guests.

They were Mrs. Faye Wright, mayor; Mrs. Mary McCullough, safety-service director; Miss Shirley Hartt, municipal judge, and Mrs. Clara Hall, police chief.

Herman was brought to the meeting in handcuffs by Patrolman Charles Winters and sat behind make-believe bars for his meal.

The first woman dentist in America was Emeline Roberts Jones who became a partner in her husband's practice 100 years ago.

Lions Hear Betts

School Problems Of Decade Aired

Problems facing Ohio schools in the next decade were outlined by Supt. Ralph W. Betts in discussing the second State House Conference on Education to be held Jan. 26 in Columbus at the meeting of the Lions Club Friday noon at the Travelers Hotel.

Using a film strip to show the statistics, Betts said an additional million children will be enrolled in the state's schools by 1970.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS had an enrollment of 1.2 million in 1950 and added 700,000 students in the last 10 years, he pointed out.

The additional enrollment will create a need for 36,000 additional classrooms and does not include the replacement of any antequated school buildings.

It also will result in the need for 116,000 teachers who must be found by 1970, the superintendent continued, explaining the total includes new teachers and replacements for those who will leave the profession.

College enroliments also are expected to more than double, jumping to 215,000 fulltime students.

REORGANIZATION still is a problem in many school districts, but progress is being shown. The number of districts has been decreased from more than 1,700 to less than 900, Betts said.

However, there are 420 districts with fewer than 240 high school pupils, the minimum allowed by the State Department of Education. In addition, 133 districts have no high school.

"It may surprise you to know that some high schools have 50 or less pupils. Educators say you cannot operate a complete high school program economically with less than 500 pupils," the superintendent said.

No estimate on how much it will cost to educate the additional pupils has been made, Betts said. However, the state spent $210 million in 1949 for 1.2 million pupils and $550 million in 1949 to educate 1.8 million students.

If the spending continues at the present rate per pupil, the state will have to dig up $900 million by 1970. But if operating costs continue to rise, the bill could come to $1.7 billion, he said.

THE COST DOES not include any funds for school construction, 95 per cent of which is financed by local bond issues.

Property taxes are the only local source of revenue for schools, along with funds from the state foundation program which provides an average of $6,866 per classroom unit. In East Liverpool, there is slightly less than $9,000 in assessed valuation behind each pupil, he said.

Betts pointed out Ohio ranks 7th among the top 10 states in student population, spending $366 per pupil.

The superintendent reminded two local conferences will be held to precede the statewide meeting.

The first meeting, open to any resident of the school district, will be held Oct. 18 at the high school auditorium and the theme will be "What Do We Want From Our Schools?"

—:—

THE SECOND meeting in mid-November will discuss "How Do We Get What We Want from Our Schools?"

Betts was introduced by Leo C. Lawrence, program chairman. Howard E. Tice, president, presided.

Charles Herman, co-chairman of the club's annual light bulb sale, appealed to members to turn out Monday night in attempt to conclude the campaign. Proceeds go to charitable work.

Herman said only 379 packages of bulbs have been sold so far.

—:—

FOUR MEMBERS of the Business and Professional Women's Club, who "arrested and tried" Herman Tuesday when they took over the reigns of municipal government, were guests.

They were Mrs. Faye Wright, mayor; Mrs. Mary McCullough, safety-service director; Miss Shirley Hartt, municipal judge, and Mrs. Clara Hall, police chief.

Herman was brought to the meeting in handcuffs by Patrolman Charles Winters and sat behind make-believe bars for his meal.

The first woman dentist in America was Emeline Roberts Jones who became a partner in her husband's practice 100 years ago.

Adventure for Newspaperboys!

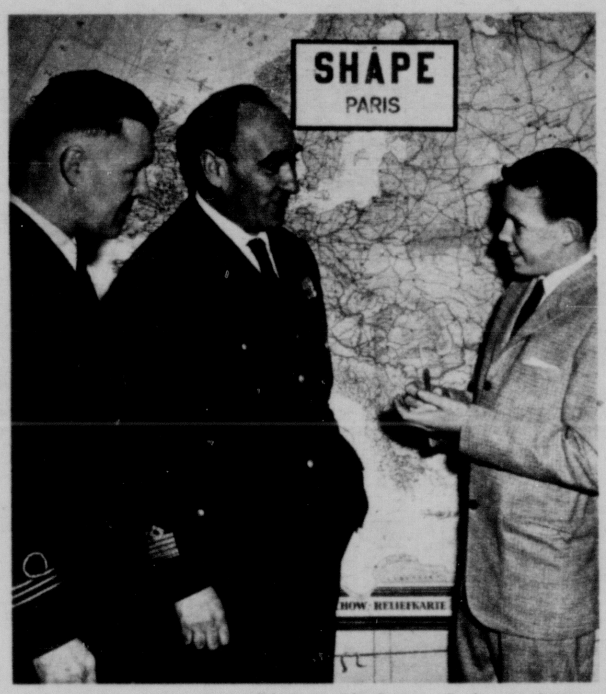
Next Saturday is National Newspaperboy Day honoring the young businessmen whose delivery route may stretch from your front porch to Holland, Switzerland—and now Brazil

American newspaperboys and escorts don Dutch garb during a visit to Holland.



Junior Reporter Ronald Lee Shelton of the Kokomo, Indiana, Tribune interviews SHAPE officers in Paris.

"WHOOOOOOOOPEEEEEEEE!!!" Like a clap of thunder, Mike Reuter's voice boomed through the house and resounded down the block.

Normally reserved, the 17-year-old Scottsbluff, Neb., high-school senior was flushed with excitement. He had just been told that he had won a trip to Europe as a "Junior Reporter."

Mike's reaction was typical of that of scores of newspaperboys all over the United States who won similar contests sponsored by the newspapers that distribute FAMILY WEEKLY. The boys were chosen on the basis of their newspaper-sales records, and such qualities as character, scholastic standing, and service to the community.

Realizing that the American newspaperboy is a vital link between the printed word and the people who read it, the Junior Reporter program was instituted to show some of the wide world to newspaperboys who, every day in all weather, bring this world into the homes of millions of newspaper readers.

In 13 thrill-packed days, the Junior Reporters traveled 12,000 miles and visited New York City and cities and towns in Holland, Belgium, France, and Switzerland. Eager and wide-eyed, they flew across the Atlantic via Swissair and KLM Airlines to see the storied places they knew only from books and movies. They returned loaded with unforgettable experiences and a fondness for the people they met and the countries they visited.

The friendships formed by these happy, healthy, hearty youngsters as they traveled through Europe contributed greatly to the building of better international relationships.

This coming winter their young arms of friendship will be extended in another direction, to South America, when Junior Reporters will jet to Brazil via Varig Airlines for a good-will tour of our neighbor to the south (see cover).

ON THE OCCASION of National Newspaperboy Day, which will be celebrated next Saturday, FAMILY WEEKLY salutes the Junior Reporters and all newspaperboys, who typify the best in young America. Many of the nation's most successful men say with pride that the principles and methods they learned as newspaperboys were invaluable to them in adult life. But perhaps "What Being a Newspaperboy Means" is best expressed by a carrier himself, 17-year-old Ronald D. Bryson of Galeton, N.Y., one of the Junior Reporters to visit Europe.

He writes:

"I have been a newspaperboy for six years. During this time, I have had many pleasant experiences. There were the interesting conversations with my customers, the cheery calls of 'Merry Christmas' and 'Happy New Year' at the Yuletide season, and the fresh ginger cookie every Saturday night from Mrs. Oxford.

"I can still see Mr. Brown on his porch complaining because his paper was late—then, at Christmas time, his completely unexpected present of a pair of gloves.

"I see myself climbing that old, prickly thorn tree to bring down Mrs. Oakland's cat, just when I wanted to be home watching television. I know now that I shall remember her happy smile far longer than that television program. Those were happy days.

"Delivering papers has also given me the opportunity to meet many new people: Mr. Logan, the druggist, who first gave me the idea to become a pharmacist; Mr. Lioner, who got me interested in collecting coins; Mr. Brown, who finally made me see that he liked me even though he was gruff; and big-hearted Mrs. Kline, who, with the others, will always stand out in my mind as a very good friend—more than just a 'customer.'

"All of these memorable experiences I owe to being a newspaperboy.

"I have many cherished memories, gained many helpful friends, and learned how to cope with life's everyday trials and tribulations. Then comes the most tangible proof of my service as a newspaperboy—the saved profits that will make a dream come true. I will go to college."

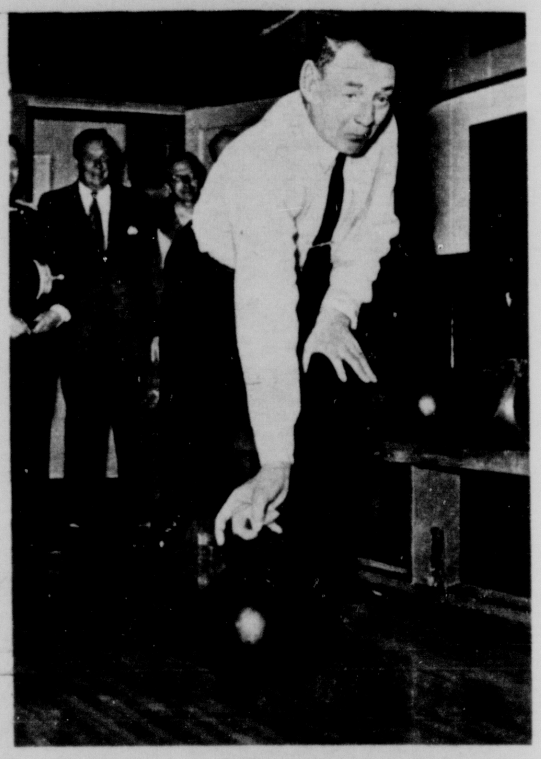
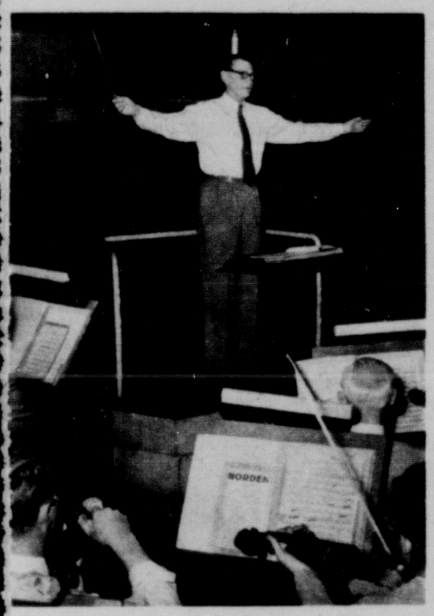
Turning for a last look, Queen Ingrid smiles at crowd's send-off after she and King visited London together.



Doffing his jacket, King Frederick of Denmark joins bowlers during state visit to Greenland.

Royal Couple with a Common Touch



A skilled musician, King rehearses Danish Symphony Orchestra in a concert later heard over radio.

TO PARAPHRASE the popular song, "There is nothing like a Dane"—especially if the Dane is King of Denmark. Americans can see for themselves a king who has the common touch as King Frederick and Queen Ingrid of Denmark currently pay their first visit to the U. S.

Though the six-foot-four Frederick, as constitutional ruler of the world's oldest monarchy, is every inch a king, he and his handsome Queen often walk through the streets of Copenhagen without police escorts, courtiers, or security guards that cramp the movements of other kings, queens, and presidents.

While in the U. S., the King and Queen will visit Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, Washington, D. C., and New York, attending formal functions arranged for them. But their life in Denmark centers around their home and three daughters—21-year-old Crown Princess Margarethe, Anne-Marie, 16, and Benedikte, 14. The Princesses all attend public schools, mixing freely with students from all walks of life.

The King's interests are many. He is an enthusiastic sailor, photographer, bowler, and rifleman. Perhaps his favorite hobby is music; a competent pianist, he enjoys conducting the Royal Danish Symphony—"when they let me," he says.

High point of the royal tour will be the opening of an "Arts of Denmark" exhibition at New York's Metropolitan Museum. Especially assembled for the U. S., the show features Danish arts and crafts from Viking days to the present, and will later be shown in museums throughout the U. S. under the joint sponsorship of King Frederick and President Eisenhower.

Royal Danes include Crown Princess Margarethe, Queen, Princess Anne-Marie, King, and Princess Benedikte.

On a visit to Venice, Frederick finds pigeons perching on royal arms keep him too occupied to snap photos.

How to leave the hospital with your savings account in good health, too!

New "Master Hospital Plan" affords larger benefits to help you pay today's higher costs of hospital and surgical care.

New York Life now offers a new hospital expense policy—a lifetime insurance plan providing increased protection.

This modern policy includes increased hospital and surgical benefit features. Because the plan does not cover small claims (you may elect either a $50 or $100 deductible clause) it helps protect you against the really big bills at a more reasonable premium.

Once you have this policy properly in force it is guaranteed renewable as long as you live, regardless of any change in your health or the number of times you receive benefits. What's more, New York Life can't reduce your benefits, can't increase your premium rate unless the rate is changed for everyone in the same class.

Your New York Life Agent will gladly tell you more about this new "Master Hospital Plan." He can also show you other types of hospital and surgical expense plans, including one issued to persons from age 61 through 75.

How to leave the hospital with your savings account in good health, too!

Now "Master Hospital Plan" affords larger benefits to help you pay today's higher costs of hospital and surgical care.

New York Life now offers a new hospital expense policy—a lifetime insurance plan providing increased protection.

This modern policy includes increased hospital and surgical benefit features. Because the plan does not cover small claims (you may elect either a $50 or $100 deductible clause) it helps protect you against the really big bills at a more reasonable premium.

Once you have this policy properly in force it is guaranteed renewable as long as you live, regardless of any change in your health or the number of times you receive benefits. What's more, New York Life can't reduce your benefits, can't increase your premium rate unless the rate is changed for everyone in the same class.

Your New York Life Agent will gladly tell you more about this new "Master Hospital Plan." He can also show you other types of hospital and surgical expense plans, including one issued to persons from age 61 through 75.

Economy Is Killing Me!

I did! I did! I saved today
On decorated crocks,
On patio accessories,
On marked-down French Room frocks.

I saved on hats, I saved on gloves,
And prints of Montmartre scenes;
But suddenly I fear I saved
Far beyond my means!

QUIPS AND QUOTES

The only thing that kept the kindergarten teacher from going to pieces was the fact it was Friday. As Johnny poked Mary, and Janie cried for her mother, the young woman kept telling herself: "An hour or so, and it'll all be over for a couple of days."

The last minutes were spent pulling on galoshes and rounding up lost apparel. When the teacher got to the last lad, he noticed an envelope sticking out from her pocket. "What's that?" he asked.

"My pay check," replied the teacher.

"Oh," he said with renewed interest, "you got a job someplace?"

—Ernest Blevins

"My husband built it with his own hands!"

A lot of teen-agers think that a sound investment is a hi-fi.

A Final Thought on Daylight Saving Time

The time it saved us
Was mostly spent
At nightfall wondering
Where it went.

"Thanks—you finally managed to preach one that didn't seem to apply to me!"

A group of Army reserves were being put through a tough training session as the windup to their encampment. They swam across a river, climbed a vertical cliff, scrambled through thickets, and plunged down gulleys.

"Well," asked the breathless captain at the end of the course, "what did you think of it?"

"Made me homesick," drawled one country lad. "'Twas jest like going from our house to the barn." —Dan Bennett

Among those things so simple that even a child can operate them are grandparents. —Al Spong

Her friend was wildly excited on the phone. "I just won some money in a contest," she said, "and went out and bought a beautiful baby bear!"

"A baby bear?" the friend asked. "But why a baby bear?"

"Well, my husband says I can't handle money, so before I spent it foolishly, I thought I'd better get a bear." —Paul Steiner

A LIFETIME DIET that makes sense!

By FREDRICK J. STARE, M.D., and MADGE L. MYERS
DEPARTMENT OF NUTRITION, HARVARD UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

STARVATION—the way to reduce? It may seem so if you listen to bridge or luncheon table conversations: "No thanks, my dear. Do you realize how many calories that has?" or "Oh, I couldn't—too fattening, you know." And you'll find the equivalent in many all-male groups.

The "battle of the bulge" has become one of the major preoccupations of Americans whether overweight or not. And we are not alone. This past spring in Nairobi, East Africa, we read an excellent article giving helpful advice and information on how to take off unwanted pounds. Even in underdeveloped areas, where getting enough to eat has been more of a problem than having too much, the value of figure control, as well as the dangers of obesity, is beginning to be recognized.

Why, then, are there so many people who lose the battle? It seems clear that their strategy is wrong. For one thing, there seems to be a fixed idea that the road to a slim silhouette must be costly to be effective. True, if we shop for pills and special gimmicks touted to do the work for us. Trips to reducing salons, special-formula liquid concoctions, trick "diet" plans, fancy machines are expensive, unnecessary, and discouraging.

Since we are willing to spend so much money on panaceas, let's consider the economics of overeating. How much do you suppose it cost to put on those unwanted pounds? A single pound of fat on you represents an excessive intake of about 3,500 calories and can cost anywhere from about $2.50 to $8. So an extra 15 pounds could easily represent $37.50 to $120 in hard cash.

So you look at yourself and get inspired to do something. You spend three or four weeks eating hay and sawdust, take off 10 pounds or so, get bored, and in a couple of months the 10 pounds are back in place—another $50 down the gullet.

The moral in this is obvious. Don't get fat in the first place. That way, you save both your money and your health.

Actually, cutting down on calories should save money, if you do it sensibly. An orange or an apple costs less than a hot-fudge sundae. A four-ounce portion of steak is certainly less expensive than an eight- or ten-ounce serving.

Suppose you cut down 500 calories a day. This could be a saving of anywhere from 20 cents to $1. If we are ultraconservative and say 40 cents as an average, this would mean you've not only cut down on your waistline by a pound a week but also on your food bill by about $3.

If you really go all out and not only reduce the calories you consume but also increase your activity, remember this: walking shoes are a lot less expensive than dues to a private gymnasium or handball club.

The idea we are trying to convey is that anyone who wants to can take off weight by either reducing calories or increasing exercises—preferably by both! And there is a right way to do it as well as several wrong ways. The right way needn't cost you money, and there is no reason to disrupt patterns, or cook separate meals for the would-be sylphs in the family.

How to do it? We haven't any magic formulas or "open sesame" words. All we can do is appeal to you to use the common sense you put in use in planning other activities.

First and foremost, you must want—really and truly—to lose or control your weight. Then the battle is half won. Your doctor or dietitian can't do this for you. You have to supply the motivation, and you have to do the work.

The second step is to check to see if you are planning meals well. Do they insure the proper distribution and intake of essential nutrients? By this, we mean that a selection of a variety of foods from the "Basic Four" is a must for anyone—fat or thin. A chart with this article shows what the Basic Four include.

As an example, here are two menus. How would you rate them? They have essentially the same foods and the same calorie value.

MENU I	MENU II
Breakfast:	Breakfast:
Stewed prunes Sweet roll and butter or margarine Coffee	Orange slices Cereal with milk (or scrambled egg) Toast and butter or margarine Coffee
Noon:	Noon:
Baked macaroni and cheese Apple pie Carbonated drink	Baked macaroni and cheese Fruit salad on lettuce Roll and butter Milk
Supper:	Supper:
Fried perch with lemon Mashed potatoes Escalloped corn Rice pudding and cookies Beverage	Fried perch with lemon Mashed potatoes Buttered spinach Shredded lettuce with French dressing Rice pudding and cookies Beverage

Menu II is an example of good menu planning. Sorry, Menu I sounds pretty good and lots of people eat this way, but it isn't good planning. Look at breakfast—no source of good protein, nothing to stay with you until noon. A breakfast like this often can be responsible for extra calories at 10 a.m.

Menu I lacks variety, too. The food items are not the same, but macaroni, potatoes, corn, and rice are "starchy" foods and have pretty much the same consistency. Variety means not only a wide choice of foods but also variety in texture, in consistency, and in color, too.

Also, in checking with the Basic Four, we see that Group III is sadly neglected. Fruits and vegetables—a variety of them—some raw, some cooked, some green, some yellow—are valuable sources of vitamins and minerals as well as being, as a group, fairly low in calories.

After establishing good menu-planning habits, learn something about the relative calorie value of foods. There is no point in memorizing pages of figures. All one needs is a good working knowledge of what kinds of foods are considered to be high, medium, or low in calories. There are some of each in all four food groups.

A nutritionist friend of ours was seated at a luncheon beside a real Mrs. Five-by-Five. This lady remarked that her doctor told her that if she didn't eat bread and potatoes she would lose weight. Her complaint was that she hadn't eaten any for a year—and had lost no weight. A look at her plate told why. Among other things, she had a fine big helping of escalloped noodles, two corn muffins with butter and jam, and pecan pie with ice cream for dessert. True, though, she had no bread and potatoes!

Usually by eating one modest serving of everything on a well-planned menu, weight can be controlled, perhaps even lowered slowly but surely. Sometimes it is helpful to substitute a food lower in calories for a high one, depending on how fast you wish to lose.

Menu II, for example, furnishes about 2,200 calories. Broil the fish in a little milk instead of frying it; have a moderate serving of plain fruited gelatin and one cookie for dessert; use some lemon juice or wine vinegar to dress your salad. Right there you have saved 350 calories. This many calories saved every day is 2,400 a week, which should represent a weight loss of about ⅔ pound.

In any weight-control program, the between-meal snacks require some attention. All propaganda to the contrary, "snacking" is of value if done properly. We like to talk about "scientific" nibbles versus "common" ones. Scientific nibbles are those you plan on and make a part of your diet, preferably something saved from a meal. They have something to add to the essential nutrient value of your diet. Many weight-watchers have discovered that spacing food intake helps control hunger. A glass of milk, an apple, or cheese and crackers an hour before dinner may make it easier to refuse the a la mode part of the small piece of apple pie.

Now the other step—get out and walk! Everybody in the family should do it. Children don't have to be chauffeured every place they go. Studies show that overweight youngsters don't necessarily eat more than their lean classmates—they do less.

Two big features of the idea of cutting down, not out, as a means of reducing or watching your weight are that you need not eliminate any single food or group of foods, and that no special diets are required. Bread, potatoes, sugar, butter—all can be included in your plan of cutting down, not out. And the same menus can be used for every member of the family, a fact that is not only psychologically desirable, because no reducer likes to be set apart from the group, but makes meal planning simple. It is merely a question of the proper variety to insure balanced nutrition, the proper-size portions of well-prepared food to provide the right number of calories to lose or gain weight.

Our final word of advice: don't be fooled by fad diets. Common sense isn't the forte of "nature nutritionists." Levelheaded, serious research has yet to prove that you can take any sort of panacea and be able to "eat all you want and grow slim!"

I was just thinking...

GOLD HELMET, green field, red jersey, white night. If you've never witnessed a high-school football game in a small town, you've never savored the full flavor of America.

I recommend to you, stranger:

The moon shining on the school (old classrooms, new gymnasium) and on the homecoming queen (old crown, new face).

The boy who yesterday weighed 115 pounds dripping wet and is tonight wetter in the heat of battle and burdened by a junior spaceman's armor.

His proud father and frightened mother who pace his pride from the side lines and suffer every scar and fumble.

The six new teachers in a righteous row. The four former teachers comparing swaddled babies whose formulae have become far more important than square roots.

The smallest girl in the marching band, a mushroom under a top-heavy hat. The biggest boy in the marching band, who can't bend over.

The coach, green as the grass, in audible agony. The sternest critics, the corner quarterbacks, on bleacher duty while their wives make a kaffee-klatsch of an outing. The town veterinarian on the fender of his dusty station wagon, his cigar shifting with every signal on the field.

The PTA refreshment stand offering "Dounots" for the benefit of the scoreboard and to the eternal disgrace of spelling class.

A night ripped by whistles and the hoarse cries of animal adolescence and the explosion of balloons left over from the parade. A velvet-wrapped woman in the grip of a stalwart in dirty sweatshirt whose moments of glory were on this field too long ago.

The splintered bleacher beyond which six small boys and a dog of indifferent ancestry duplicate the energy of the field.

The air which would taste of champagne elsewhere and here is cidery and crisp as cold apples in its simplicity.

I recommend all this to you, stranger, for when you have seen it and heard it and been a part of it, you will sleep the sleep of the just tonight, and tomorrow with rejoicing greet the dawn.

The coach, green as the grass, in audible agony. The sternest critics, the corner quarterbacks, on bleacher duty while their wives make a kaffeeklatsch of an outing. The town veterinarian on the fender of his dusty station wagon, his cigar shifting with every signal on the field.

The PTA refreshment stand offering "Dounots" for the benefit of the scoreboard and to the eternal disgrace of spelling class.

A night ripped by whistles and the hoarse cries of animal adolescence and the explosion of balloons left over from the parade. A velvet-wrapped woman in the grip of a stalwart in dirty sweatshirt whose moments of glory were on this field too long ago.

The splintered bleacher beyond which six small boys and a dog of indifferent ancestry duplicate the energy of the field.

The air which would taste of champagne elsewhere and here is cidery and crisp as cold apples in its simplicity.

I recommend all this to you, stranger, for when you have seen it and heard it and been a part of it, you will sleep the sleep of the just tonight, and tomorrow with rejoicing greet the dawn.

It's the most useable, liveable, likeable car ever built—the '61 Chevrolet. Less out size that leaves extra inches of clearance for parking and garaging. More in size with seats as much as 14% higher (just right for sitting, just right for seeing) and a shaved down driveshaft tunnel (more foot room in the rear). Larger door openings (up to 6 inches wider) make an open and shut case for comfort and convenience all by themselves, and that new hold-everything trunk (you can stack cargo 15% higher) shows you that Chevy thinks big about baggage, too. Loading is an easy lift to the new bumper-level deck lid opening and packing odd-sized objects is a cinch, thanks to the recessed deep-well floor. Drop by your Chevrolet dealer's tomorrow for sure and see the one '61 that gives you a whole new measure of your money's worth!

now...more space, spunk and savings!

NEW '61 CHEVY CORVAIR!

Wasn't easy, but we managed to make Corvair even more desirable for '61: we put more spunk into that air-cooled rear engine by boosting the displacement to 145 cubic inches. Made Corvair even thriftier to run: you get more miles per gallon plus quicker cold-start warmup to get you saving sooner. (There's even a new heater* that warms everybody evenly.) Added space inside for you, up front for your luggage. (Sedans and coupes give you nearly 12% more space under the hood, plus a longer range fuel tank.) You'll like Corvair's smoother, smarter styling, too, the minute you lay eyes on it. Some things we wouldn't change for the world though: Corvair's thistledown handling, its butter-smooth 4-wheel independent suspension ride. But that's not the half of Corvair's good news for '61. Now Corvair has family-lovin' wagons for you! *Optional at extra cost

The Lakewood 700 Station Wagon—4 doors and up to 68 cubic feet of cargo area.

Now in production—the nimble Greenbrier Sports Wagon.

The Lakewood Station Wagon does a man-sized job with cargo, yet handles like a charm. It gives you room for up to 58 cubic feet of cargo inside, plus another 10 cubic feet of lockable luggage area under the hood. The Greenbrier Sports Wagon has up to 175.5 cubic feet of space for you and your things, on a maneuverable 95" wheelbase. Check that against the wagons you're used to. Same rear-engine traction, same parkability that have become a Corvair trademark. See the whole sensible lineup soon—all nine models: sedans, coupes and wagons—at your Chevrolet dealer's.

The Paul Newmans Fight for Their Marriage

Paul and Joanne Woodward have all the strikes against them that make Hollywood marriages so short-lived, yet the experts say that for these two it really will be "happily ever after"

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

"WOULD YOU LIKE some coffee, Miss Gray?" the stewardess asked.

The man beside "Miss Gray" nudged her with his elbow, and she hastily looked up. "Oh, yes, thank you."

"Miss Gray" was really actress Joanne Woodward, and the man beside her, traveling under the name of Edward Hall, was Paul Newman.

They were on their way to Las Vegas, Nev., to be married, and to begin the struggle for a happy and sane home life—a struggle which has yet to cease.

The glare of publicity is the bane of any show-business marriage, and when they eloped, Paul and Joanne were determined to keep their private lives out of the spotlight—just as they attempt to do so today. But then, as now, they are defeated at almost every turn.

Since their wedding, Joanne and Paul have been consantly tormented by flashbulbs, fans, and reporters. Joanne stands up comparatively well under the ordeal because she remembers when she was an avid fan.

On the other hand, Paul is a lot more outspoken about the constant spotlight. "Why shouldn't an actor get angry at an invasion of his privacy? We're human beings, too, aren't we?"

But though Paul gets violently upset when fans intrude in his home life, a typical actor's ego makes him resent being constantly mistaken for Marlon Brando.

As he insists, "Every actor wants to have a sense of special identity." Luckily, however, his sense of humor keeps him from being belligerent about the mistaken identity. He admits with a sly grin to having signed as many Brando autographs as Brando himself!

As for Joanne—who is always changing the color and style of her hair so that she seldom looks the same for any length of time—she's also annoyed at not being recognized. She still burns at the memory of the night she went to a premiere with her friend, playwright Gore Vidal, while Paul was starring in a play, and the TV commentator couldn't remember who she was!

It is the problem of finding the median between the two extremes—being public property and wanting the acclaim on the one hand, and having a private life on the other—that Paul and Joanne must face squarely.

The subordination of their personal lives to their careers even included the birth of their baby, Elenor Teresa—whom they call Nell for short.

"I cleverly arranged to be pregnant when Paul was starring in 'Sweet Bird of Youth' in New York," she told me. But that was only half the problem. "I wanted Paul to be close when the baby was born, and I kept praying I would have it during the day or after midnight, when Paul wouldn't be on stage."

Joanne went into labor at 6 a.m. on a Wednesday, which worried her terribly because it was matinee day—and Paul had to be at the theater by 2:30 p.m. The baby arrived just in time for Paul to see her—and get to the theater three minutes before curtain time!

ASIDE FROM the tension and uncertainties created by two acting careers in one family, the biggest drawback to a normal life and, consequently, a normal marriage, is the impossibility to relax except in their Washington Square brownstone home in New York.

While in Israel, where Paul was making "Exodus," Joanne had hoped to be free to move about a lot with the baby. But every time she stepped out of her hotel she was swamped by fans.

One morning she and Paul decided to have breakfast on their tiny balcony facing a side street. Within minutes, a crowd of 150 persons had assembled below them. This annoyed Joanne so much that she flung a slice of bread at them. But the bread was so light that it gently floated down—to the enthusiastic applause of the fans. Determined to show her feelings, she picked up a hard roll and aimed it directly at a man very close to her. He caught it deftly,

APART FROM the tension and uncertainties created by two acting careers in one family, the biggest drawback to a normal life and, consequently, a normal marriage, is the impossibility to relax except in their Washington Square brownstone home in New York.

While in Israel, where Paul was making "Exodus," Joanne had hoped to be free to move about a lot with the baby. But every time she stepped out of her hotel she was swamped by fans.

One morning she and Paul decided to have breakfast on their tiny balcony facing a side street. Within minutes, a crowd of 150 persons had assembled below them. Determined to show her feelings, she picked up a hard roll and aimed it directly at a man very close to her. He caught it deftly, and the crowd started shouting for more. From then on they had breakfast behind closed doors!

Right now, Paul and Joanne appear to be as happy and compatible as any couple I know, but the knowledge that few show-business marriages last is always with them, although they won't admit it even to one another, except in jest.

This underlying fear of marital difficulties is evident in many of their decisions and attitudes. Joanne insists, whenever possible, on not being separated from Paul. For instance, she turned down two choice parts to be with him in Israel. Curiously enough, it is Joanne who loves acting—while Paul hates it!

"I would prefer to direct and produce pictures," he told me. Says Joanne, "I give up many opportunities for Paul, but I can't be a martyr. Fortunately, I'm in a good position now that I've won an Oscar."

Commenting on a common cause of friction between married stars, Joanne claims she gets a big kick out of the passes made at Paul by admiring women. Paul, on the other hand, admits to extreme jealousy. When his wife did a love scene with another actor in "From the Terrace," he stood on the side lines with a big switch. "When she finished," he recalls with a grin, "I let her have it across her behind—just in case she got any romantic notions."

Both admit that working together has its drawbacks. Joanne insists that "unlikely as it may seem, it's very difficult to costar in a film with your husband. Paul and I have a tendency to try to boss each other when we work together. Actually, all we ever fight about is the method—his and mine."

According to Paul, a husband and wife who costar in movies can escape temperamental friction only by successfully setting a professional attitude on the studio set.

Paul and Joanne have found their work so demanding that they haven't been able to take a vacation since they were married two-and-a-half years ago.

"Once in a while we get a day off in New York by telling people we're away when we really stay home and just don't answer the telephone," Paul explained.

New York seems to afford them the greatest amount of home life, but contrary to what one might expect, their mode of living is much closer to that of a middle-class couple than the popular conception of movie stars. And it's not by choice, for in spite of their tremendous artistic success they still haven't reached financial security.

They had to decide against the new Mercedes which Paul wanted so badly, and for the time being will continue to whiz around Manhattan in their Volkswagen or on their motor scooter.

And, of necessity, Joanne's wardrobe is still modest by movie-star standards. "I was criticized for sewing my outfit for the Academy Awards the year I won my Oscar. The truth is, a new outfit would have cost me too much."

Always simply but well dressed, Joanne avoids extremes "because then everyone would notice if I wore a dress twice."

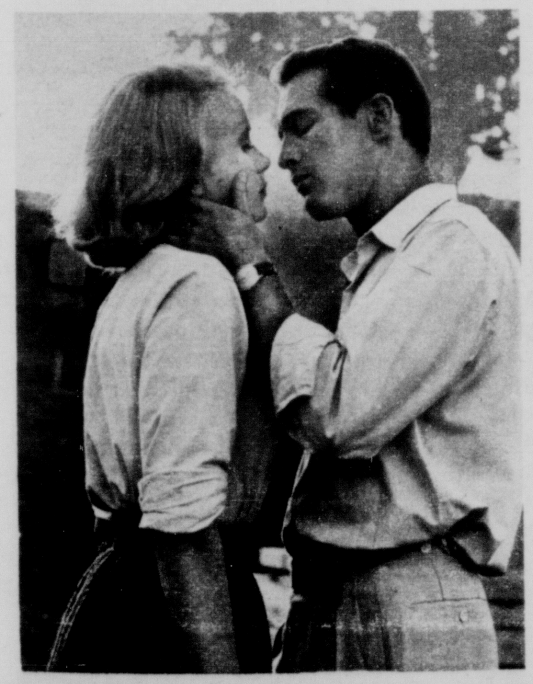
HOWEVER, with each picture their salaries rise. So, in view of the constant demand on their talent, they soon should have only the financial worries of the upper-income bracket. When this happens, they will have reached the top of their field. Such an achievement, ironically enough, goes hand-in-hand with even less privacy.

As soon as Paul finished "Exodus," they had to rush back to New York to prepare for "Paris Blues," in which they costar.

After the 23-hour flight home, they had just enough time to spend a couple of weeks with Paul's children by his first marriage, then pack their bags again!

As for their continued search to find the balance in their lives, perhaps their friend, director Mark Robson, is right when he says hopefully, "I think they'll be one acting couple who will continue to get along. Both of them had enormous problems with their previous marriages, and that has helped them look realistically at themselves so that they have a good chance of making a go of it together."

Newman and Eva Marie Saint in love scene from "Exodus," which was filmed in Israel.



In recent movie, "From the Terrace," Paul and Joanne play an incompatible married couple.

and the crowd started shouting for more. From then on they had breakfast behind closed doors!

Right now, Paul and Joanne appear to be as happy and compatible as any couple I know, but the knowledge that few show-business marriages last is always with them, although they won't admit it even to one another, except in jest.

This underlying fear of marital difficulties is evident in many of their decisions and attitudes. Joanne insists, whenever possible, on not being separated from Paul. For instance, she turned down two choice parts to be with him in Israel. Curiously enough, it is Joanne who loves acting—while Paul hates it!

"I would prefer to direct and produce pictures," he told me. Says Joanne, "I give up many opportunities for Paul, but I can't be a martyr. Fortunately, I'm in a good position now that I've won an Oscar."

Commenting on a common cause of friction between married stars, Joanne claims she gets a big kick out of the passes made at Paul by admiring women. Paul, on the other hand, admits to extreme jealousy. When his wife did a love scene with another actor in "From the Terrace," he stood on the side lines with a big switch. "When she finished," he recalls with a grin, "I let her have it across her behind—just in case she got any romantic notions."

Both admit that working together has its drawbacks. Joanne insists that "unlikely as it may seem, it's very difficult to costar in a film with your husband. Paul and I have a tendency to try to boss each other when we work together. Actually, all we ever fight about is the method—his and mine."

According to Paul, a husband and wife who costar in movies can escape temperamental friction only by successfully setting a professional attitude on the studio set.

Paul and Joanne have found their work so demanding that they haven't been able to take a vacation since they were married two-and-a-half years ago.

"Once in a while we get a day off in New York by telling people we're away when we really stay home and just don't answer the telephone," Paul explained.

New York seems to afford them the greatest amount of home life, but contrary to what one might expect, their mode of living is much closer to that of a middle-class couple than the popular conception of movie stars. And it's not by choice, for in spite of their tremendous artistic success they still haven't reached financial security.

They had to decide against the new Mercedes which Paul wanted so badly, and for the time being will continue to whiz around Manhattan in their Volkswagen or on their motor scooter.

And, of necessity, Joanne's wardrobe is still modest by movie-star standards. "I was criticized for sewing my outfit for the Academy Awards the year I won my Oscar. The truth is, a new outfit would have cost me too much."

Always simply but well dressed, Joanne avoids extremes "because then everyone would notice if I wore a dress twice."

HOWEVER, with each picture their salaries rise. So, in view of the constant demand on their talent, they soon should have only the financial worries of the upper-income bracket. When this happens, they will have reached the top of their field. Such an achievement, ironically enough, goes hand-in-hand with even less privacy.

As soon as Paul finished "Exodus," they had to rush back to New York to prepare for "Paris Blues," in which they costar.

After the 23-hour flight home, they had just enough time to spend a couple of weeks with Paul's children by his first marriage, then pack their bags again!

As for their continued search to find the balance in their lives, perhaps their friend, director Mark Robson, is right when he says hopefully, "I think they'll be one acting couple who will continue to get along. Both of them had enormous problems with their previous marriages, and that has helped them look realistically at themselves so that they have a good chance of making a go of it together."

Newman and Eva Marie Saint in love scene from "Exodus," which was filmed in Israel.

In recent movie, "From the Terrace," Paul and Joanne play an incompatible married couple.

- 6 eggs
- 1 loaf unsliced white bread
- Melted butter
- 1 qt. oysters
- ⅓ cup butter
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- 3 tablespoons flour
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- Few grains black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon rosemary
- ¾ cup milk
- 1 cup (8-oz. can) tomato sauce
- 1½ cups thick sour cream

1. Hard-cook and peel the eggs; set aside to keep warm.

2. Meanwhile, cut a thin, lengthwise slice from the top of the loaf of bread. With a small, sharp knife, cut down around edge of loaf, ¾ in. from edges and down to ¾ in. from bottom, keeping shell intact. Remove soft center and cut into small cubes. Using a star-shaped cookie cutter, cut 4 stars from the top slice. Brush inside of bread shell and the stars with melted butter; toss bread cubes with melted butter. Place bread shell, stars, and cubes on a baking sheet.

3. Toast bread in a 350°F oven 12 to 15 min., or until lightly browned, turning cubes and stars occasionally to brown evenly. Set aside.

4. Meanwhile, drain the oysters, reserving liquid. Pick over oysters to remove any shell particles. (If oysters are frozen, thaw according to directions on package.)

5. Heat ⅓ cup of the butter in a saucepan over low heat. Add oysters and reserved liquid. Simmer 3 min., or until oysters are plump and edges begin to curl. Set aside.

6. Heat the remaining ⅓ cup butter in the top of a double boiler over low heat. Add the green pepper and cook over medium heat until tender, occasionally moving and turning pieces with a spoon. Blend in a mixture of flour, salt, pepper, and rosemary. Heat until mixture bubbles. Remove from heat.

7. Gradually add the milk and then the tomato sauce, stirring constantly. Bring rapidly to boiling, stirring constantly, and cook until sauce thickens. Set double-boiler top over simmering water. Add the sour cream in small amounts, stirring constantly. Add the oysters and cook, stirring frequently, 5 min., or until thoroughly heated. Mix in the toasted bread cubes.

8. Place the toasted bread shell on a serving platter and turn the oyster mixture into it. Top with the toasted bread stars. Arrange the hard-cooked eggs, cut in halves lengthwise, around the loaf. Serve immediately.

2. Beat sour cream, mustard, and salt together. Blend in the flour.
3. Cover fish fillets with one-third of the sour-cream mixture. Top with one-third of the bacon, ½ cup of the cucumber, and 1 teaspoon of the capers; repeat layering twice. Top with the Parmesan cheese.

Pompano Florentine

TO PREPARE: 20 MIN. TO BAKE: ABOUT 10 MIN.

Mornay Sauce*

- 1 10-oz. pkg. frozen chopped spinach
- 4 6-oz. pompano fillets
- ¼ cup butter, melted
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon black pepper

1. Cook spinach according to directions on package.
2. Meanwhile, place pompano fillets, skin side down, on a greased broiler rack. Brush with one-half of a mixture of the butter and lemon juice. Broil 2 in. from source of heat about 8 min., or until fish flakes easily when pierced with a fork. During broiling, brush fillets with remaining butter mixture.
3. When spinach is tender, drain thoroughly. Blend with 1 cup of the Mornay Sauce; keep hot.
4. When fillets are done, sprinkle with a mixture of salt and pepper. Spoon about ¾ cup Mornay Sauce over fillets. Broil 2 to 3 min., or just until sauce is lightly browned.
5. Arrange spinach mixture in four servings on a warm serving platter. Carefully place fillets over spinach. Pour remaining Mornay Sauce around fillets. Garnish platter with parsley sprigs and lemon wedges. Serve immediately.

4 servings

*For Mornay Sauce (about 2 cups)—Heat 3 tablespoons butter in top of double boiler over low heat. Blend in 3 tablespoons flour and heat until mixture bubbles. Remove from heat; gradually add ¾ cup cooked chicken broth and ¾ cup cream, stirring constantly. Return to heat and bring rapidly to boiling, stirring constantly; cook 1 to 2 min. longer. Remove from heat and vigorously stir about 3 tablespoons of sauce into 2 slightly beaten egg yolks; immediately return mixture to double boiler. Cook over simmering water 3 to 5 min.; stir slowly to keep mixture cooking evenly. Cool slightly. Add ½ cup shredded Parmesan cheese or Gruyère cheese and 1 tablespoon butter; blend until cheese is melted.

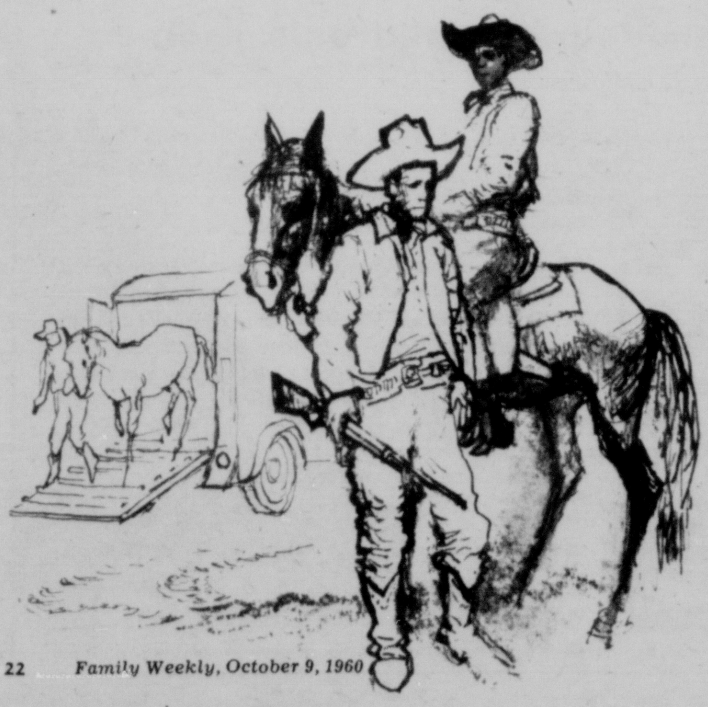
They're Still Catching Rustlers in Texas

Outlaws use pickup trucks instead of horses and hide beef in freezers instead of secret valleys, but one tradition of the Old West remains—the man they fear most is the Texas Ranger

By A. A. ADOLPHE



THE SCENE was the Port of Houston, where a political agitator was trying to stir up trouble. "Why be afraid of the Texas Rangers?" he asked the crowd. "They're just flesh and blood like the rest of us!"

A Ranger in the crowd slowly made his way to the front. He didn't say a word—just looked. The loud-mouthed troublemaker paled and backed away. There was no more agitating. He stumbled off his soapbox and caught the next ship home.

Such is the mien and reputation of the oldest and one of the smallest law-enforcement agencies in the United States today. Fifty-two men operating from six stations cover the 267,339 square miles that make up the 254 counties of Texas. They are charged with three principal duties: suppression of riots and insurrection; apprehension of fugitives; and protection of life and property. And, strangely in this modern time, one of their biggest problems is still the cattle rustler.

Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the Texas department of public safety and chief of the Rangers, points out that when the price of meat goes up the theft of livestock rises accordingly.

"In 1959 we probably had more cattle rustling than at any time in our history," he says.

On the Rangers' quarterly crime reports, theft of livestock ranked third, surpassed only by burglary and gambling, and required 4,877 investigations last year.

"It's harder to catch the little fellow these days," drawls one Ranger. "He can drive into a pasture in his pickup truck, throw a rope around a cow, haul it off, and have the meat in his home freezer before the owner misses it. But we still catch a lot of them."

Whether he is after the "little fellow" or the big one, today's Ranger uses the most modern methods of crime detection. He has at his disposal the Texas Crime Laboratory in Austin, one of the finest in the world; also armored cars, airplanes, a helicopter, a 21-foot deep-water cabin cruiser, portable power units and searchlights, dragging and diving equipment—even bloodhounds. (Until recently, the Rangers had their own dogs, but they required too much attention and training; now they borrow bloodhounds from prisons.)

Sometimes a Ranger is his own best bloodhound. Recently a rancher reported that several of his Black Angus cattle were missing. A Ranger sergeant loaded his horse into his auto-trailer and went to the ranch to investigate. He discovered that the cattle had been herded into a corral on the adjoining ranch and loaded from chutes there. This was evident from the black hair which was clinging to the sides of a chute where only Herefords (red and white cattle) had been loaded.

Next he took molds of the tire tracks and measured them. Here was a stroke of luck. The tracks were considerably wider than those made by most trailers. Word went out to all law-enforcement officers to be on the alert for such a trailer.

Before it was located, another rancher reported cattle missing. The same method had been used here, too, and the same trailer. This time the rustlers had left another bit of evidence. Their trailer had brushed a gatepost, leaving bits of paint. From the scrapings, the Ranger knew he was after a yellow trailer.

Patient questioning finally located the trailer at a local rental agency. The records showed that at the time of both cattle thefts the trailer had been rented to the same two brothers. By now the Ranger had enough evidence to convict both men.

The Texas Rangers were organized in 1823 primarily to defend settlers from the Indians. Indian fighters knew it was far better to fight to the death than to be taken captive, and from this background came one of the basic Ranger principles: never surrender.

Soon the Rangers had the additional problems of Mexican bandit raids in Texas. By 1875 lawlessness and crime in the sparsely settled western counties claimed even more attention. The Ranger had been an Indian fighter and part soldier. Now he became a police officer, too. Distances were great and communications poor, so the men worked without close supervision. This is still true today. Colonel Garrison says: "We tell each man to enforce the law in his district. How he does it is up to him."

BESIDES BEING highly self-sufficient, a Ranger also is noted as a man of action rather than words. In Washington County, a sheriff was shot. His murderer fled to the Brazos River bottoms.

The Ranger who was sent to track down the killer spent many a grueling day and night. For the better part of two weeks, he used all his resourcefulness and stamina in pursuit of the fleeing man. His terse report closed the case. It read:

"Searched on horseback and foot. After 275 hours, located subject at Yegua Creek. Subject resisted and fired on Ranger. Subject was killed."

Rangers may make felony arrests without warrants on airplanes, trains, boats, or in automobiles. Because of these broad powers, and because each man must exercise individual initiative constantly, the men are carefully chosen.

For the one or two vacancies that may occur during a year, the department of public safety has hundreds of applicants. They write from every state in the Union, and from many foreign countries. However, qualifications include a year's residence in Texas, an excellent physical condition, and at least four years as an officer of an outstanding law-enforcement agency. Many of the men come from the Texas Highway Patrol. Some were county sheriffs. Only a handful have left the Rangers for reasons other than retirement in the past 22 years.

So outstanding have the Rangers proved themselves that during World War II the simple mention of "Ranger" caused a problem for the German military. When American Rangers, a strictly GI outfit, landed in Europe from the Mediterranean, both the French and Germans believed they were the storybook Texas Rangers.

The French rejoiced, but not the Germans. The idea of fighting Texas Rangers so demoralized some German units that Nazi propagandist Joseph Goebbels had to broadcast an explanation. He ended by saying that even if these were the Texas Rangers his Germans could beat them. But it's still questionable how many German troops were convinced.

MODERN-DAY Texas Rangers zealously protect the hard-won reputation of decades. Once a Dallas murderer fled Texas for Brazil. Although we have no extradition treaty with Brazil, the government there declared the criminal an undesirable alien and expelled him. A Ranger was on the American ship to make the arrest when the Brazilian authorities led him aboard.

By the time the ship docked at a small Latin port, however, the prisoner had made friends with a member of the crew, who released him. When the Ranger called from the port to report the escape, Colonel Garrison's instructions were: "Don't come back unless he's with you. Escapes just don't happen to a Ranger!"

The Ranger, with local military police, set off into the tropical jungle determined to uphold a tradition. His next report to Austin read simply: "Apprehension made. Returning with prisoner."

Although you've read a lot about Texas Rangers, you might not recognize one if you saw him. He wears no formal uniform. If he is working in a city, he may be dressed in a business suit. If he is riding the brush country, his clothing may include jeans and chaps. Usually he wears cowboy boots, a broad-brimmed Stetson hat, matching gabardine trousers, and Western field jacket.

Some people even think the Texas Ranger is just a legend from the Old West. Colonel Garrison has a brusque reply to this misapprehension: "Just tell anybody who thinks the Rangers are dead to come down here and start something—we'll give him a lively reception!"

THE MOST FEROCIOUS FLESH EATER that ever lived, Tyrannosaurus Rex stood 20 feet tall and had a mouthful of vicious teeth up to 6 inches long. But not all dinosaurs were large or ferocious. Though some were longer than a railroad car, many were no larger than chickens! Each month you'll make hundreds of fascinating nature discoveries through the Audubon Nature Program.

WHY DO ELEPHANTS HAVE TRUNKS? The elephant's ancestor, the mastodon, had a long lower jaw and an extra pair of tusks for scooping up food. But, over millions of years, his jaw shortened and his lower tusks disappeared. So his nose developed into a trunk to help him gather food, since his mouth could no longer reach the ground!

IMAGINE the fun and excitement of taking a thrill-packed "trip" back to the Age of the Dinosaurs when the largest land animals ever known roamed and ruled the earth! Now, through this unique Nature Program—sponsored by the National Audubon Society—you can see and know the world as it was at the beginning of time: to explore the story of life, and to watch life's miraculous development—as certain sea dwellers inhabit the land, and certain land animals, in turn, take to the air in flight! This entire fascinating "tour" is yours to enjoy as part of the $3.00-Value Gift Package described below—for only 10¢ to help cover cost of shipping.

A Four-Part Nature Kit—Yours for Just a Dime

To introduce you to this exciting Nature Program sponsored by the National Audubon Society, the program will give you, for just a dime: (1) a magnificent set of 29 full-color photoprints showing the most interesting animals of Prehistoric Times; (2) a fact-filled 56 page illustrated Album Guide in which to mount the pictures; (3) the handsome pull-drawer case to store and protect your albums; (4) your packaged collection of 4 genuine prehistoric fossils, complete with a geological time chart.

A Different "Expedition" Each Month

Here's how the Audubon Nature Program works: Each month a different "expedition" is planned, and a set of about 30 full-color prints is issued together with a 7500-word picture text in which to mount them. Guided by wise, companionable experts (selected by the Audubon Society) you explore nature's closely-guarded secrets....learn the strange, almost unbelievable ways some animals raise their young....collect your own "museum-at-home" of albums about exotic butterflies, beautifully-colored fish of the deep sea, and animal oddities. Best of all, your naturalist-guides open your eyes to the wonders you can discover in your own backyard or nearby park.

No Obligation To Continue

With your introductory package for 10¢ (which you pay later), you will also receive the current Nature Program album set for which you will be billed only $1.00, plus a few cents shipping. But you assume no obligation to go on thereafter unless you wish. You may discontinue your membership at any time. However, once you get acquainted with these monthly "adventures" in the world of nature, your whole family will look forward to each new album set—and find warm pleasure in enjoying it together. And the total cost is so very low: only $1.00 for each album and series of pictures, plus a few cents shipping.

We urge you now to send for your complete introductory gift package, including the 4 genuine prehistoric fossils—as quantities are limited. Send no money now. Detach and mail postage-free reply coupon today to: The Audubon Nature Program, Dept. FWB-O, Garden City, New York.
